KENIMER HELD ON KIDNAP CHARGE

Daughter Reunited With Mother Following 8 Months' Separation

Fulton County Courthouse yesterday witnessed a strange reunion of a little girl and her mother who have been separated by thousands of miles, eight months in time and a fantastic chasm of legal and domestic bickerings.

Eight-year-old Betty Anne Kenimer was returned to the jurisdiction of Fulton Superior Court yesterday by Sol. Gen. Paul Webb and Investigator Lewis Clyburn after authorities had sought in this country and several others to arrest her father, handsome Charles M. Kenimer, Jr., on a bench warrant charging him with kidnaping.

The child reached the Courthouse with her father; a teenage girl companion, Barbara Gatlin, of Charleston, S. C.; a a coterie of lawyers; Fulton County officials, and newspaper reporters and photographers.

She was met half an hour later by her mother, Mrs. Muriel Kenimer Senter, who has kept alive, with tears and dogged legal battling, the nation-wide search for the return of her little girl.

The two met unexpectedly in an anteroom of Sol. Webb's office as the little girl, led by a photographer, went to get a drink of water and her mother was tearfully casting about "for a place where I can see my child alone for five minutes."

As Mrs. Senter walked in the door she came face to face with blue-eyed, dark-haired Betty. Both stopped abruptly. Betty, who had been shrilly and excitedly fending off photographers and flouncing about the office, tilted her face and smiled gently.

Lewis Clayton, investigator for the Fulton County Solicitor's office, followed a trail through four countries as well as dozens of States until it finally ended in swank Augusta Hotel. The chase ended the flight of Charles M. Kenimer, Jr., and his daughter. Story on Page 2.

The mother fell to her knees and held out her arms.

Without a word, Betty walked into her mother's arms and both started crying.

Later, mother and daughter walked out of the office hand in hand for a few moments alone down the hall.

Meanwhile, Kenimer was allowed to post a $3,000 cash bond made by J. B. Courtney. Then attorneys for both Mrs. Senter and her former husband consulted Judge Ralph Pharr about custody of the child.

Judge Pharr ruled that custody of Betty Anne will remain in her mother until further notice by the Court.

The little girl, slender pointed-face, and highly nervous, appeared a little calmer after her meeting with her mother. She sat by her mother's side and the two of them, in whispers, discussed a puppy named "Mickey," Betty left at the Senter's Athens home when her father began his cross-country chase with her Feb. 5.

"Is Mickey really dead?" sobbed the child aloud for a moment.

"Yes, but we will get you another puppy," her mother said softly.

Betty said she was "supposed to be in the third grade, but I haven't seen my teacher yet." William S. Hope, of Charleston, who with Roy Harris, accompanied Kenimer here as his attorneys, explained that Betty had been enrolled "in a very exclusive school in Houston, Texas." He also added "she has gained 11 pounds since her father took her."

Harris indicated Kenimer has only begun to fight for his child, and hinted at fresh onslaughts of mud-slinging which have marked the Kenimer-Senter case since it has been in the courts. Kenimer's attorneys attempted to get Mrs. Senter restricted from leaving the State of Georgia with the child, but John Hudson, attorney for Mrs. Senter, said Judge Pharr ruled Mrs. Senter was free to take the child "where you want to."

A hearing in the custody suit will be set at a later date, Judge Pharr said.

Mrs. Senter took the child to the Atlanta home of her parents, and said she would reside there temporarily. Her husband, Wade Senter, a representative of National Cash Register Company, has been transferred to Tennessee, but Mrs. Senter said they still owned their Athens home, and had not yet moved.

Hurricane Swats Rich Texas Coast Near Galveston

GALVESTON, Texas—(AP)—A hurricane loaded with winds above 100 miles an hour slammed into the rich Texas coast last night between Freeport and Matagorda and moved inland.

The Galveston Weather Bureau said the edge of the storm was about to strike here.

Houston braced for hurricane winds.

The striking storm covered a broader area than had been expected. The base of its target extended 70 miles southwest of here to Matagorda. Earlier, Freeport, about 40 miles away, had been set as the southwestern end of the target.

Houston, about 50 miles inland from here, is the apex of a triangle expected to catch the force of the blow.

The area is packed with dozens of towns, millions of people and millions of dollars worth of industry, shipping and farms.

Winds of 75 to 80 miles an hour whipped Matagorda. The Freeport Coast Guard Station reported a seven-and-a-half-foot tide.

The U. S. Weather Bureau at New Orleans said the highest winds reported to it were 100-mile-an-hour gusts at Freeport.

At 10 p. m. (CST), the Bureau said the center of the storm had reached the Texas Coast near Freeport.

Winds within 25 miles of the center were estimated at more than 100 miles an hour by the Weather Bureau. Earlier, a Navy pilot who flew into the storm said he founds winds as high as 120 miles an hour.

The U. S. Weather Bureau at Corpus Christi said it appeared the storm was moving inland nearer Matagorda than Freeport. Corpus Christi is 130 miles down the coast from Matagorda.

As the hurricane moved in it drove trash cans rattling down Freeport streets. The town is three miles from the beach, and the road leading to the beach already was under water. The big Dow Chemical plant reported at 10 p. m. that it was in snug shape. Lights in the town flickered.

A small crew was standing by in the plant, which sent more than 2,500 men away as it closed yesterday. Many residents of Freeport left town about two hours before the storm began edging in.

The U. S. Weather Bureau's 10 p. m., CST, advisory said, "The hurricane was located at 10 p. m., CST, near Latitude 28.9, Longitude 95.3, or about 60 miles south of Houston, Texas. It is moving northward about 20 miles an hour. The center is now on the coast near Freeport.

"Strongest winds are above 100 miles per hour within 25 miles of the center. Highest winds reported so far by coastal stations 100 miles per hour in gusts at Freeport.

"Precautions should be continued against dangerous tides and hurricane winds on the upper Texas and extreme West Louisiana coasts and for gales and high tides on remainder of Louisiana coast.

"Heavy rains and high winds are expected for a distance of 200 miles to the north of Freeport-Lake Charles area. Hurricane warnings are displayed north of Corpus Christi, Texas, to Lake Charles, La., and storm warnings on the remainder of the Louisiana coast. Small craft east of the Louisiana Coast should remain in port."

Baruch Asks Standby Plan For War

NEW YORK—(AP)—Bernard M. Baruch said last night the Russian atomic blast means this country must set up at once a standby mobilization plan and "maintain our overwhelming advantage" in the field of atomic weapons.

The 79-year-old financiar urged also that the U. S. (1) re-examine its strategy for peace and (2) "stand its ground in insisting upon nothing less than a truly effective international control of atomic energy."

In putting forth his program Baruch, author of the U. S. plan for atomic energy control, renewed the controversy in which he and President Truman engaged last Summer over the state of American preparedness.

Baruch charged last June that the Truman Administration rejected a stand-by mobilization plan submitted by the National Security Resources Board. Shortly thereafter President Truman said he hadn't rejected such a plan because the board hadn't submitted one. Baruch, in reply, suggested the President re-examine White House files.

"Everything possible should be planned for in advance, debated and put in law now, so each of us knows what is expected of him or her," Baruch said of stand-by mobilization in his statement.

"This stand-by mobilization program is not urged in any alarmist sense. I urged it before the second World War when it might have prevented Hitler's blitzkrieg. I urged it before the Soviet 'atomic explosion'. Properly done, it could prove our most effective, single deterrent against another war."

Baruch said that merely to outlaw the atomic bomb is no insurance against atomic destruction.

"Unless this prohibition is accompanied by a truly effective, enforceable international inspection and control of atomic energy, we would be penalizing those nations which observe agreements to the advantage of those who may not.

"All future atomic energy proposals should be submitted to one test—do they mean safe and sure control? Anything less than that would be worse than nothing."

Baruch urged that a "thoroughgoing civilian defense" accompany the stand-by mobilization plan.

"This would not mean taking actual mobilization measures now," he said. "What I have urged for more than 20 years is that Congress enact all necessary legislation, to go into effect in event of emergency or proclamation by the President and concurrent resolution of Congress—by both acting together."

Part of Lung Is Lost by Vandenberg

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—(AP)—Sen. Vendenberg, Republican, Michigan, spent more than six hours on the operating table yesterday and physicians said half of his left lung had been removed. They termed his condition "excellent."

Dr. John Alexander, surgeon in charge, released the following statement:

"Sen. Vandenberg was operated on this morning, one-half of his left lung was removed. His condition during the operation was excellent."

Last night after checking the condition of the patient, Dr. Alexander reported, "So far he is fine. I couldn't expect him to be better." Vandenberg is at University of Michigan Hospital.

Vandenberg entered the hospital last Monday for a checkup. Nature of his illness was not disclosed.

Dr. John Alexander, surgeon in charge, said only that the Senator was operated on for a lung lesion. He said Vandenberg's condition was "satisfactory."

Civil Rights Bill Action Off Till '50

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Striving to adjourn Congress this month, the Truman Administration yesterday postponed the big civil rights battle until 1950.

Senate Democratic Leader Lucas said after a White House conference the first issue to be tackled when Congress returns in January will be the highly controversial Fair Employment Practices measure.

This is a prime item on President Truman's 10-point plan intended to assure civil rights of racial, religious and other minorities.

Lucas said Congress might get out of Washington in two or three weeks. That would give the lawmakers some two months before they return to the grind.

The decision on civil rights apparently was made with the certainty in mind that a Southern filibuster would result from any attempt to bring up one of these bills. This would jam any other pending legislation and end the session in a Democratic uproar.

The FEPC bill is intended to prevent racial or religious discrimination in the hiring of workmen.

House Speaker Rayburn told reporters that he hopes the House can take up today or tomorrow a bill increasing Social Security payments and extending the system to more people.

This measure topped one big hurdle when the House Rules Committee approved it for a House vote under a rule barring floor amendments. The Senate will not act on it this year, but it is expected to come up in 1950.

Rayburn said he expects final action this session on higher minimum wages, farm supports and bills increasing Federal pay.

In the Senate, a farm bill is up for debate and Lucas said he expects passage by tomorrow night. The House has passed another farm bill and a compromise will be necessary.

Wallace Granted Stay Of Execution Here

By CELESTINE SIBLEY

John Wallace, Meriwether County farmer, lost his fight for freedom yesterday, but gained another stay in his electrocution for the burned-bone slaying of William (Wilson) Turner.

Fulton County Superior Court Judge Virlyn B. Moore denied Wallace's petition for a writ of habeas corpus on the grounds of so-called "sensational new evidence," and remanded him to the custody of Fulton Sheriff A. B. "Bud" Foster.

But, by agreement of attorneys on both sides, Judge Moore said he would grant Wallace time to make an appeal to the State Supreme Court.

The Oct. 14 date set for Wallace's electrocution will probably be changed, Judge Moore said, after he has had time to consider a defense motion for a supersedeas.

Earlier, three of Wallace's alleged accomplices in the Coweta

County slaying in the Spring of 1948, told the Court they were "scared they'd get the electric chair" themselves.

The three, Henry Mobley, Tom Strickland and Herring Sivell, are serving life sentences for their alleged participation in the beating, which the State charged cost the life of Turner at Sunset Tourist Court, a few miles south of Newnan.

Two prisoners were placed on the stand by Wallace's attorney to testify that they overheard the two Negroes who were the State's principal witnesses against Wallace say they had lied "about helping Mr. John burn Mr. Turner's body," and did so on threat of hanging at the hands of a 200-man mob led by Sheriff Lamar Potts, of Coweta County.

Levine Doster, prisoner in a Coweta County work camp, said he heard Robert Lee Gates and Albert Brook, the two Negroes who led officers to the place where they allegedly helped Wallace burn Turner's body tell Wallace that they were "made to tell that by some men who had a rope and said they were going to hang them."

Brewer D. Putman, who is serving time for larceny, testified that Gates and his wife came to the jail and called to Wallace from outside the window and told him they wished they lived back on his place.

Putman said Wallace asked Gates why he "told those lies" and Gates replied about 200 men had him "down there in the woods and had ropes and made me tell." Gates quoted the Negro as saying he did not burn the body of Turner but "it was hid in the sawdust pile."

The two Negroes placed on the stand yesterday reiterated their statement that they moved Turner's body from a well at Wallace's direction and burned it in a pit and then scattered the ashes in the creek.

Sivell, one of the three to plead guilty instead of standing trial in the slaying, told the Court State's Attorney he "had to refuse to testify for John Wallace to get a life sentence."

Sivell said they told him repeatedly his own life was in danger, and he pleaded guilty rather than stand trial. All three of Wallace's codefendants admitted under cross-examination that their decision to plead guilty was based on advice of their attorneys.

A. L. Henson, of Atlanta, and Gus Huddleston, of Greenville, attorney, introduced into the record newspaper stories which they said "inflamed public opinion against Wallace" and made it impossible for their client to get a fair trial in Coweta County.

HONEST FORGER RETURNS 40 CENTS

ST. JOSEPH, Mo.—(AP)—Francis Curry, St. Joseph tavern operator, though he had found an honest man.

Mild, Showers Slated Today

Atlanta will have mild but cloudy weather today, the weatherman says, with a few scattered showers during the day.

CLOUDY

The weather over the city is due to be cloudy and slightly warmer again tomorrow, he said, with showers to hamper scurrying trolley riders.

The high temperature reading today is expected to reach 76 after dropping to a cool of 62 during the early morning hours. High tomorrow is due to go to 78 with an early morning low of 64. The top reading yesterday was 75 during the afternoon with a low of 62 during early morning.

Pittman Named Pension Head

G. A. Pittman, of Decatur, an assistant executive in Georgia's teacher retirement system, has been selected to head the State's retirement plan for more than 5,000 Capitol workers.

The Board of Managers of the State Retirement System announced the selection yesterday.

More than 5,000 employees in eight State agencies are scheduled to go under the new retirement system next January. Other departments may be added by the January Legislature.

The plan calls for a deduction of five percent from the workers' pay roll. The State will contribute 6.8 percent. The pension will be voluntary for present employees, but compulsory for future workers.

Departments covered include the Highway, Labor, Welfare, Health, Milledgeville State Hospital, Highway Patrol, Public Service Commission and Auditor's Office.

State workers are not eligible for Federal Social Security.

Couple Indicted On Two Charges

Two Spalding County residents yesterday were indicted on charges of assault with intent to murder and living in adultry in connection with the brutal beating of a three-year-old child recently, Sheriff J. O. Posey reported.

The pair identified as Horace Crawford and Reba Prather will go on trial in Spalding Superior Court probably next Monday.

Miss Prather and Crawford were arrested by Spalding County authorities about two weeks ago.

Navy Morale 'All Shot,' Secret Documents Claim

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Documents secretly slipped to newsmen yesterday pictured U. S. Navy morale as shot to pieces and the nation's security imperilled under the present unified defense setup.

The documents, signed with the names of high Naval officers, were handed to reporters by a Naval source in a shadowy corridor of a downtown office building. He stipulated that his name must not be used and that the papers must not be published until 7 p. m. (EST) last night.

The documents which consisted of typed copies of letters from the Naval officers included:

1. A statement by Adm. Louis Denfield, Chief of Naval Operations, that a "Navy stripped of its offensive power means a nation stripped of its offensive power."

2. A warning by Vice Adm. Gerald F. Bogan, Commander of the First Task Fleet in the Pacific, that Navy morale has plummeted "almost to despondency," because of a widespread belief that the country is being "sold a false bill of goods."

3. A statement by Adm. A. W. Radford, Commander-in-Chief of the Pacific Fleet, that a majority of officers in that fleet concur in Bogan's views and also in those expressed by Naval Capt. John G. Crommelin. Crommelin created a sensation recently by publicly charging that the Navy's attack power is being "nibbled to death" in the Pentagon, defense head quarters.

Navy officials declined any immediate comment on the release of the documents.

The release was the latest incident in a long tug-of-war between the Navy and the Air Force for Congressional appropriations and the right to carry out strategic air assignments.

In one of the documents, Vice Adm. Bogan gave "hearty and complete" indorsement to Crommelin's statements.

Bogan's views were set forth in a letter to Secretary of the Navy Matthews. En route to Matthews, the letter was relayed through Admirals Radford and Denfeld, both of whom appended letters expressing their views.

Bogan said Navy morale "is lower today than at any time since I entered the commissioned ranks in 1916."

He said this "stems from complete confusion as to the future role of the Navy and its advantages or disadvantages as a permanent career."

Romania and Bulgaria Recognize Red China

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

While the democracies pondered how to handle their newest diplomatic hot potato—the Communist Government of China—Romania and Bulgaria yesterday trooped along behind Soviet Russia in giving it recognition.

Both Bulgaria and Romania in extending formal indorsement of the Red people's republic in Peiping indicated that they wished to resume as soon as possible relations with China broken off during their wartime Axis membership.

Soviet Russia wasted no time Sunday in throwing her approval behind the new Chinese regime only a few hours after it had invited world-wide recognition.

TODAY WORLD

Russia prefaced recognition with a formal break in her relations with the Nationalist regime at Canton, which she described as no more than a provincial government.

The Nationalist Foreign Minister, George Yeh, retorted that Russia had committed an act of aggression, not only towards China but also to the peace of the Far East.

Informants in London said British Foreign Secretary Bevin will explore the question of recognition with U. S. Secretary of State Acheson and French Foreign Minister Schuman, when Bevin returns to the U. S. from Canada Thursday.

Britain — worried over the effects of delay to her extensive holdings in Communist-controlled China—led off with an invitation to the members of her own commonwealth and the 11 Atlantic Pact governments—a total of 18 in all—to discuss what to do about recognition.

The United States last April got Britain and France to promise that the West would act as one man in withholding or extending it.

The U. S. State Department, saying that it was continuing to review all developments in China with "interested friendly governments", added it will not recognize the Communists without first hearing from leaders of Congress.

Informed British sources in London and other information from Berlin pointed to the early establishment of a Communist East German Republic.

Meanwhile, Yugoslavia's Premier Marshal Tito asked with sarcasm: "How do Russia and her satellites get confessions out of political prisoners?"

He gloomily answered the question himself. There must, he said, be some "monstrous method."

Shifting about a bit, he told a group of his officers that the Army was "prepared to defend this country until the last breath, regardless whence the attack comes."

20 Die in Floods

NAPLES, Italy—(AP)—Between 20 and 30 persons were killed and hundreds were left homeless in flash floods that inundated several mountain towns north and east of here, unofficial reports said yesterday.

City Indorses $500,000 Housing Loan Request

The Atlanta City Government yesterday indorsed unanimously a request for a $500,000 loan from the Public Housing Administration to begin plans for 3,500 public housing units in Atlanta costing an estimated $30,000,000.

Councilman John A. White, Chairman of Council's Slum Clearance Committee, offered the measure and said it will provide money for two purposes—mapping plans for the housing units and a redevelopment survey for metropolitan Atlanta.

Several weeks ago, PHA announced it had allocated funds for 3,500 new units for Atlanta to be done within the next three years. The Atlanta Housing Authority already has filed an application for the money. Council's action is to bolster the request and expedite start on the projects.

The resolution pledged the cooperation of the Mayor and Council of Atlanta in provision of the 3,500 units "pursuant to the United States Housing Act of 1937 as amended."

Long Pursuit of Charles Kenimer, Jr., Ends in Swank Suite of Augusta Hotel

By PAUL JONES

The poker-faced investigator rapped on the door at Suite 448 of a swank hotel in Augusta.

Inside was a man who had nervously twiddled his thumbs throughout the afternoon. He arose quickly from his plush sofa. He opened the door and faced, for the first time, the man who had dogged his trail from State to State, from island to island, until his will to flee was broken.

The poker-faced investigator's countenance was as stone-like as a sphinx. His lips broke only slightly as he said: "I'm Lewis Clyburn, Investigator for the Solicitor's Office, of Fulton County."

The nervous man extended his hand. "I'm Charles M. Kenimer, Junior."

Thus ended one of the most intensive manhunts which began in February, and which continued from Atlanta to Cuba, to Mexico, to Puerto Rico, to Haiti, back to Cuba and then to New York, Alabama, Texas, North and South Carolina and many other States of the Union.

In this investigation immigration officers in Miami, and on the Mexican border had been alerted. Police departments of scores of cities in Southern States had been alerted. Special details had been posted at football games and special investigators had attended horse races in two countries in an effort to apprehend a man who had been indicted by the Fulton Grand Jury of kidnaping his own child.

To Lewis Clyburn, a former member of the Federal Intelligence Division of the Army Air Force and a GBI agent, this was "just another case." But Clyburn was determined to complete it because "it had embarrassed officers and the courts of Fulton County."

This dogged-determination is a hallmark with Clyburn. Throughout his career with the GBI, Clyburn learned many of the tricks of crime detection and he learned above all that determination goes a long way.

While serving with the GBI, Clyburn solved the baffling Loganville grave robbery. To turn this trick, he posed as a real-estate man to gain the confidence of one of the suspects. He turned this trick, in four days after the Department had pursued the investigation for more than five months.

Minute nylon fibers which he found on a bracelet lying beside the body of a Griffin murder victim enabled him to solve that case.

Shortly after Kenimer was indicted by the Fulton County Grand Jury for "abducting" his own child, Clyburn was assigned to the case.

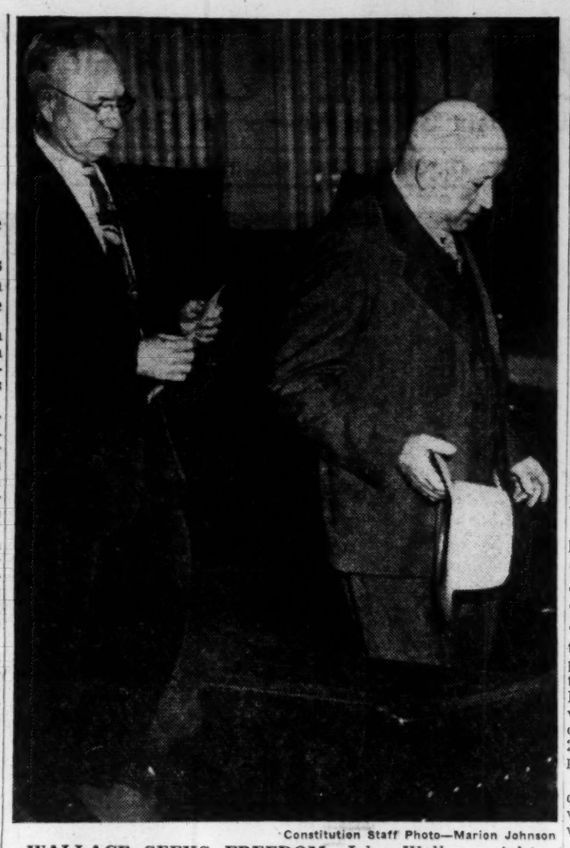

A "hunch" that Kenimer had fled to Cuba with his eight-year-old daughter was followed up by Clyburn, and he flew to Havana. Sure enough, his "hunch" was right. Clyburn worked fast. He immediately enlisted the support of Cuban authorities in an effort to have Kenimer returned to Fulton County.

The Cuban Police Department assigned a patrol to surround an apartment house in which Kenimer, his second wife and daughter had taken refuge, and Clyburn had two airports near Havana surrounded when he learned that Kenimer had booked passage for Mexico.

But Kenimer slipped past his guard and fled in a private plane to San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Clyburn said he had arranged for transportation on the plane if Kenimer had boarded the Mexico-bound ship.

Kenimer told Investigator Clyburn: "I will never tell you how I got out of the apartment that night." He then pointed his finger at Clyburn and paid the investigator this tribute: "You dogged me so, I just couldn't live that way any longer."

102,000 Miners Return To Pits With Lewis Okay

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Most of the nation's steel and coal producing facilities lay unused yesterday, stopped by two major strikes, but about one-fifth of the coal diggers went back to their jobs.

Some 102,000 of John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers got his nod to call off their two-week "voluntary" walkout. The other 400,000 stood pat—outside the pits.

Gunfire marked a clash of union and non-union miners at Pikeville, Tenn. A United Mine Workers official reported 20 unarmed union men were ambushed when they paid a "peaceful" visit to a non-union mine. Three of the UMW members were injured.

Those who resumed work were 80,000 hard coal miners of Pennsylvania and 22,000 soft coal producers whose output goes chiefly to heating of homes.

Meanwhile, Lewis prepared unhurriedly to negotiate for new contracts to replace those which expired Aug. 15. He hasn't yet announced what terms will be demanded, but one prime issue will be restoration of the collapsed Miners' Welfare Fund. Lewis has indicated this will mean increasing — possibly doubling—the welfare royalty of 20 cents a ton operators have been paying on coal mined.

LABOR ROUNDUP

And Lewis has said he wants to cut working hours for his miners without any corresponding cut in wages.

At St. Paul, Minn., William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, voiced an aim for shorter hours of labor. He told the AFL convention also that he didn't like the no-pay-boost recommendation of President Truman's Steel Fact-Finding Board.

"We don't accept the principle of Government boards setting our hour wages anywhere," he declared. "We have never waived our right to demand wage increases for the workers of America. And we're not going to do it."

He referred to the Fact-Finding Board's recommendation for company-paid pensions and insurance at a rate of 10 cents per man hour worked which CIO President Philip Murray had accepted as a basis for settlement of the steel dispute. The management of steel's big plants insisted that workers should pay something, and failure to agree led to the walkout of 500,000 steelworkers Saturday.

Monday, steelworker dockhands on the Great Lakes joined the strike, tieing up discharge of iron ore from freighters at Detroit, Cleveland and Buffalo.

The American Iron and Steel Institute reported that the strike had shut down 90.3 percent of the steelmaking facilities which were operating last week. The Institute estimated the first week loss in steel production will amount to 1,408,600 tons.

With the steel shutdown under way, and the industrial coal production stoppage entering its third week, the nation's economy had a double affliction with complications.

The outlook was certain in one respect. If there isn't a cure soon, the trouble will get much worse. Thousands of industries now operating will have to shut down when they can no longer draw steel or coal from diminishing stockpiles. And that will mean unemployment will mount and spread.

A new proposal was submitted to the Missouri Pacific Railroad by four unions which have been on strike since Sept. 9. They offered to drop, with certain assurances, 91 of the 282 claims which precipitated the strike. Previously, the railroad agreed to settle 59 of the claims. This leaves 132 union claims still in dispute.

Class Trip Campaign Adds 37 New Groups

By FRANK MAJORS

A torrent of 37 new entries in the $100,000 Class Trip Campaign flooded The Atlanta Constitution offices by week-end mail to zip the total number of classes actively participating past the 150 mark.

Students all over the State, too, were discovering for themselves how incredibly easy it is to raise funds for their annual school jaunts or other group projects through the simple expedient of signing up new one-year subscribers on carrier-delivered routes of the newspaper.

As evidence of their accomplishments, signed subscription orders were snowballing into the special headquarters staff assigned to verify the entrants' progress and credit them with the funds to help make true those dreams of seeing Washington, New York, or other famous spots at the end of the school term.

The spectacular success schools in every section of the State are reporting should encourage other schools to get their entries in now before the period of highest returns close Nov. 1.

HUNTS AT 91

STOCKHOLM — (INS) — King Gustav V, of Sweden, at 91 the world's oldest ruler, again yesterday manifested his unusual stamina by doing a little duck hunting. Gustav, an avid sportsman, only recently recovered from an attack of bronchitis.

Hospital Siege For Douglas, Hurt by Horse

YAKIMA, Wash.—(AP)—U. S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, frequently mentioned as a possible Democratic candidate for the presidency in 1952, was recovering satisfactorily yesterday from extensive chest injuries received when a frightened horse fell and rolled on him.

The 50-year-old jurist suffered 13 rib fractures and a punctured lung Sunday morning while on a horseback trip in the Cascade Mountains, near the scene of his boyhood.

Physilcians attending him yesterday said that while he was in considerable pain he was "coming out of it nicely." They said he would probably be hospitalized several weeks.

Douglas was riding with a boyhood friend, Elon J. Gilbert, of Yakima, in the rugged Chinook area of the high Cascades.

The justice had stopped to tighten his saddle cinch on a narrow, rocky trail. As he was remounting, his horse reared and threw him.

His companion went for aid, but it was more than an hour before a stretcher could be brought up the narrow trail.

Innocent, Plea Of Swindling Suspect Here

Dustin A. Youngs, accused by the Government of working a swindling racket in many cities, entered a plea of innocent in Federal Court here yesterday.

Youngs was arrested last August in Birmingham, where he was posing as a cook. The FBI said he was working in a rooming house.

The FBI said Youngs, under the alias Roy V. Farnsworth, was a partner of Herbert V. Silversmith.

They were accused of traveling around the country offering to publish city directories for newspapers, and then disappearing with money they had collected.

Silversmith was convicted last year and sentenced to five years.

Youngs is accused of using the mails to defraud and violating the National Stolen Property Act.

Court attaches said they did not know when the case would be set for trial.

LOVES TROUPING, BUT HER FEET GET TIRED

Winston's Daughter Sarah a Visitor

By BILL BORING

Sarah Churchill, daughter of England's Winston, is finding life as a stock-company trouper in America vastly different from what she has known at No. 10 Downing St., or at the Churchill family estates, but she's loving every hurried moment of it.

She got into town yesterday about 1:30, was whisked to the Ansley, where she unpacked several suitcases (she just loves packing and unpackin suitcases), got out of her shoes to rest her feet a bit and was at the Penthouse Theatre rehearsing for today's opening of The Philadelphia Story by 3 p. m.

That's the way it has been for the 15 hectic weeks she has been on tour in this country. She closed in Washington only last Sunday night after doing two shows during the day.

But traveling—by train, boat or plane—is one of the great joys of life, she says. She has a lot of energy and gets a bang out of spending it.

In fact, she confides, somewhat ashamedly, she has been moving so fast since coming to America that "I haven't been able to write home as often as I should."

When Sarah left England, Papa Churchill didn't call her aside and impart paternal advice. Her parents, she says, are wise parents who think their children should stand on their own two feet.

The stage is Miss Churchill's chief interest today. Maybe someday Hollywood will call. If it does, she says she will be ready to accept. She feels that acting in the movies and on the legitimate stage are cut from the same artistic cloth.

Starring with Miss Churchill in "The Philadelphia Story" will be Jeffrey Lynn.

14 Injured In Blast; 100 Cars Smashed

NEW YORK— (UP) —Fourteen persons were injured and some 100 automobiles wrecked yesterday in a gasoline explosion and fire in a Manhattan garage.

The explosion, which occurred at 10 a. m., shook city streets for blocks around the five-story garage and shattered hundreds of windows. Scores of families and workers were forced to evacuate nearby apartment and office buildings.

Firemen said the explosion and three-alarm fire apparently resulted from the overflow of a 500-gallon gasoline tank in the basement of the garage during a fuel delivery.

About 100 cars stored in the garage were reduced to twisted, blackened metal by the force of the blast and the gasoline-fed flames.

PRESIDENT SHUNS THAT DRAWN LOOK

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Fourteen comic strip artists sketched President Truman yesterday as he stood on the terrace of the White House rose garden.

The artists are here to participate in an exhibition of comic strips in connection with a government bond sales drive.

Before presenting drawings to the President, Ham Fisher, who draws Joe Palooka, told his associates:

"You notice the President is in better shape than any of us who are drawing his picture."

Russians Ban Divorce Except For 'Interference'

MOSCOW—(UP) — The Soviet Supreme Court yesterday banned divorces in Russia except in cases where marriage contradicts "the principles of Communist morality" or does not allow the normal raising of a family.

The High Court instructed lower courts henceforth to investigate thoroughly the causes of marriage conflicts but also to make every effort to reconcile the two parties. Mere incompatability will no longer be enough.

Shouts to 'Lost' Driver Blamed in Bus Deaths

ONTARIO, Cal.—(AP)—Ten Air Force men from March Air Base, five girls and their chaperon were killed when a speeding train tore into the bus on which they were returning from a beach party Sunday night.

The death list dropped to 16 yesterday when the coroner's office discovered one duplication.

The Air Force still declined to name its personnel killed, but the coroner's office gave these names, without ages or home addresses:

William C. Nave, Conrad N. McClay, Ralph Halliwill, Raymond Stocker, Michael Casper, Gordon G. Crimin, Sylvester A. Till, Doyle Hall, Henry L. Leary, Ralph D. McDonald. Deputy Coroner E. P. Doyle said Hall apparently was the bus driver.

Shouted directions to the driver, confused on a dark, unfamiliar road, were blamed tentatively yesterday for the wreck.

Only five bus passengers survived. A survivor, Sgt. Peter Grisolia, 21, Brooklyn, N. Y., said passengers were calling to the driver about directions to the girls' homes just before the crash.

No one on the train was injured.

A passenger train traveling 70 miles an hour struck the Air Force bus at a crossing, strewing bodies and wreckage nearly a mile.

Air Force officers said names of Base personnel would be released after notification of relatives.

The identified civilian dead:

Mrs. Ruby McLaughlin, 45, Ontario, the chaperone; Juanita McLaughlin, 18, her daughter; Mary Allen, 17, Alta Loma, Cal.; Romona De Bra, 23, Ontario; Marilyn Bigley, 18, Upland, Cal.; Gloria Myers, 19, Ontario.

The train was the Union Pacific's Pony Express eastbound to Chicago. Engineer Al Hall said "I didn't see a thing" before the crash.

O. K. Englund, La Crescenta, Cal., who sells accident insurance, was driving along a highway parallel to the tracks. He said:

"There were pieces of bodies scattered everywhere."

AT EMORY

Enrollment Up In Medicine, Theology

More Emory University students are studying dentistry, medicine, theology and nursing, while fewer are enrolled in the institution's regular college, the Valdosta and the Oxford divisions, Dean L. L. Clegg, Director of admissions, said yesterday.

Dean Clegg pointed out 3,865 students are now enrolled. The 1948 figure was 4,030, making a reduction of slightly more than four percent.

An increase was recorded at Emory in the graduate school, where 302 students enrolled last week for the coming quarter as compared with 252 last year. Law school figures remained the same, while enrollment in the Atlanta area Teacher Education Service is expected to go beyond its 174 mark of last year.

Arnall's Uncertain Hat Seen Edging Ring-ward

Back from Paris, where he served as a U. S. delegate to the UNESCO Conference, Ex-Gov. Ellis Arnall yesterday had felt the Georgia "political pulse" and found the beat somewhat encouraging to him, he said.

In the position of a man who hasn't announced his candidacy for Governor, he nevertheless was receiving a terrific response to a more or less "screened balloon" he had sent up prior to departing for Paris several week ago.

Ellis Arnall

At that time, Arnall was quoted as saying he wasn't interested in politics "for the time being." This statement was pounced upon by his followers as meaning that he might be available. It was this, he said, that set into motion the response he received upon his return.

But whether or not Arnall's hat will be in the Georgia gubernatorial ring, is still a question that he hasn't yet decided.

"We'll wait until next January on that," he stated. The way he said it, however, you felt as if he were "pulling at the traces," anxious for the excitement of a political fight.

Arnall feels that UNESCO (the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Commission) is doing a whale of a job in cementing good relations among the nations participating in it. There may be slugging in the political and diplomatic arenas of UN, but a lot of unselfish exchange of ideas, "know-how" and good fellowship is taking place on the cultural, scientific and educational front, Arnall says.

Dentist Calls For Better Aid For Children

By MILTON CHAMBERS

Dr. Herbert K. Cooper, director of a nationally known children's clinic, and who is a nationally recognized children's dentist, yesterday deplored the way Americans go about helping their crippled children.

"Our trouble is that we go about treating the parts and mostly the parts below the neck and have to form a separate group for each part of the body," he said.

"And yet," he continued, "we have heretofore paid little attention to the one out of every 750 children born, the one with a cleft palate. He is forced to retire to the edge of society, when with a little attention he can be made completely whole."

"A cleft palate, or hair-lip," said the doctor, "is caused during embryonal growth by a non-union of the palates, soft and hard, that form the basis for the upper lip. Nearly every one of these children can be helped by a children's dentist and a plastic surgeon."

Stressing the need for children's groups which will care for the whole child, Dr. Cooper said teams consisting of the family doctor, a plastic surgeon, a dentist, an orthodontist, a speech correctionist and a psychologist are needed for the child with a cleft palate.

"The general public is unaware of the number of people who suffer from the condition," said Dr. Cooper, "and therefore there is little community backing for help for them. If adequate statistics were kept, the results would be astonishing."

"We recently have become interested in the cerebral palsied child, of whom there are seven in 100,000. There are 130 children born with cleft palates in that same number," said the dentist.

"In every community there are men trained to help these children, and older people, too, if there were only enough backing for this service. The whole country needs to wake up to the plight of these crippled people, who can walk, but who cannot talk, and since they cannot talk, they can't help themselves to a normal life."

Dr. Cooper is in Atlanta to address the Northern District Dental Association tonight in the Church School Building at Emory University at 7:30.

64 Cabby Permits Cancelled

City Council yesterday revoked the operating permits of 64 taxi and cars-for-hire drivers, most of whom Ald. Ed A. Gilliam, Police Committee Chairman, said, "should never have been allowed to drive in the first place."

Council's action was unanimous after Gilliam explained that the Police Committee, which recommended the revocations, does not desire to work a hardship on anyone, is not engaged in a witch hunt and stands ready to review the individual records of the men involved to correct any injustices which may have been done.

Characterizing the revocations as the first application of the recently passed ordinance bearing down on irresponsible drivers of vehicles for hire, Gilliam said a "long-range enforcement of the ordinance will save lives."

"It will not punish any driver who is conscious of his responsibility," Gilliam added, "nor will it bar an honest man trying to make an honest living. It will keep drunk drivers from behind steering wheels."

He then made a plea for co-operation of law enforcement officers.

"If the courts do not help us, we cannot enforce the ordinance no matter how efficient or zealous the enforcement division may be," he added. We are trying to do now what we should have done long ago—protect the lives, limbs and properties of our citizens."

Ald. L. O. Moseley praised the Police Committee for its attitude in the matter, especially the promise to eliminate any injustices or hardship cases.

Mental Case Hospital Pact Let--$494,000

A $494,000 contract covering the construction of a new 1,000-bed psychiatric building at Milledgeville State Hospital was awarded by Georgia officials yesterday with work to begin immediately.

The single story, fire-proof building will cover a five-acre area and should be completed by next summer. Briggs Construction Company, of Macon, are the general contractors.

State Welfare Director Alan Kemper said the unit would relieve crowded conditions among Negro patients at the mental institution. He stated plans are now on architects' boards for a similar building for white patients.

The unit will contain 10 wards of 100 beds each, and a 32-bed isolation ward.

NEW GAMMON PRESIDENT — Bishop John W. E. Bowen, of the Atlantic Coast Area, Methodist Churches, yesterday paused to congratulate the new President of Gammon Theological Seminary, Dr. Harry V. Richardson, while presiding over the inaugural ceremony.

Discrimination a Target Of Church, Bishop Says

By CLARK HOWELL, JR.

Bishop B. Bromley Oxnam, of the New York Methodist Church, yesterday called for a general facing of facts regarding racial inequalities and injustices in New York City and in Atlanta.

He was speaking at the inaugural ceremonies on the grounds of the Gammon Theological Seminary, charging Gammon's new President, Harry V. Richardson, with his duties and responsibilities as head of the Atlanta Negro Theological Seminary.

His charge to Richardson was both tactful and sincere. It was a charge the deep South would listen to more receptively for he said: "We say we don't have racial segregation, discrimination, and other injustices in the North, but we do. We have our riots and we know it. I speak as one who has come from sinning and I am not casting stones elsewhere.

"If we are to maintain freedom and justice we have got to do more than enunciate an accasional platitude of brotherhood," the Bishop said.

"These conditions of inequality and injustice must be faced by men who move out to establish the kind of society demanded by Jesus of Nazareth."

Oxnam charged further that class, race, nation are concepts too small to unite men. He called for a larger concept. "We must be as one family because all men are brothers whether they like it or not—and the Church has got to end this business of injustice and discrimination."

Bishop Arthur J. Moore, of the Atlanta area Methodist Church, introduced Oxman as a wise and courageous crusader of Christ."

In response to the charge by Bishop Oxnam, President Richardson said the principal of love, "trite as it may sound, is the answer to man's physical and spiritual salvation in the confusion and explosiveness of these trying times.

"We must finally come to realize that man has to have God, not that God has to have man. God has rigid laws which man must discover and abide by," he continued.

"Our hope," he said, "is in two facts. First in a revitalized religion that can speak deeply to the hearts of troubled men, a religion that can point out the way of salvation in terms that modern men can comprehend.

"Our hope lies secondly in men consecrated and equipped to lead their brethren into the better life. The times are calling for spiritual engineers, men who comprehend the sources of human weakness, men prepared for the reconstruction of society along godly lines. It is to the hard task of human reconstruction that we dedicate our hearts and our engergies."

Bishop John W. E. Bowen, of the Atlantic Coast Area, Methodist Church, presided over the ceremonies and the Clark College Philharmonic Society sang the anthem, "Almighty God Our Father," and the Atlanta Spelman-Morehouse Chorus sang "Beautiful Saviour." "A mighty Fortress Is Our God" was sung by the Gammon Men's Chorus.

Women Representatives Lose in Episcopal Vote

By THE REV. J. MILTON RICHARDSON
Rector, St. Luke's Episcopal Church

SAN FRANCISCO—The fifty-sixth triennial convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church, after a weekend recess, resumed its deliberations with a heavy calendar for its final week.

Among resolutions considered yesterday was one that would give women the right of serving as lay deputies to the General Convention. The action resulted from a ruling by the House of Deputies last week against the seating of four women delegates because the constitution of the church prescribes that deputies shall be laymen.

The resolution brought before the House of Deputies yesterday would have changed the term "laymen" to "lay persons." In a vote by orders, with the clerical and lay deputies voting separately, the proposal was defeated in the clerical order by a vote of 35½ to 28½ with 16 divided votes.

In the lay order, lay deputies defeated the resolution 46½ to 24¾ with seven divided votes. Under the rules of the House of Deputies, all divided votes are counted in the negative, thus making the vote in the clerical order 51½ to 28½ and in the lay order 53¼ to 24¾.

The defeated resolution provided that of the four lay deputies to which a diocese is entitled not more than one would be a woman. It was charged by several speakers that this provision incorporated a discrimination into the proposed change, thus adding their opposition to that of those opposed to women serving as deputies.

In the spirited debate preceding the vote, the Rev. Matthew M. Warren, Rector of All Saints Church, Atlanta, told the deputies, "If we expect women to finance us, they should have the privilege and responsibility of representation. If they are communicants, they should have the right of representation."

Representative of the opposing speeches was that of the Rev. Allan Clarkson, Rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Augusta, who said, "Don't put on the shoulders of the women our responsibility. Man and women have different functions in the home and in the church. We recognize this in the home and in having only men in holy orders."

The Rev. Jame W. Kennedy of Lexington, Ky., formerly of Atlanta, favored the resolution, urging the deputies "to consider women as persons." The Rev. William H. Brady of Alton, Ill., formerly of Savannah, urged the convention to "face the issue squarely, and not to dodge it by restricting woman's representation to one delegate."

Lady Iris Mountbatten is broke and her Pa, the wealthy Marquess of Carisbrooke doesn't like it a little bit. In London, the Marquess, grandson of Queen Victoria, slammed down his telephone and refused to comment on a London paper's report that Lady Iris was in New York with no money, no job and was sponging on friends . . . William B. Mortimer, of Lowell, Mass., made a decision yesterday. He decided to spend three months in jail rather than stay away from his wife for three years. Mortimer was facing charges of assault and battery on his wife, Margaret, her mother and her aunt. It was claimed he used a baseball bat. The Judge gave him the choice and he took the three months.

A Good Robbery

The "Great Train Robbery" between Maplewood and Sawyer, Wis., didn't cause any row among the law enforcement forces. A special on the Ahnapee and Western Railroad was stopped Saturday by masked and pistol-firing bandits. They stomped through the coaches demanding money from all passengers. They got it, too. The huge fez on the engine was the tip off. The train was carrying 103 members of the Green Bay Shrine Club. The bandit's loot was turned over to the Shrine's crippled children fund. . . . The Colorado Supreme Court has upheld the conviction and fines of $300 assessed against two State game wardens charged with inducing teen-age boys to trap beaver illegally. The wardens are Roberts R. Raigan and Lawrence A. Kimsey. . . . Rearmament of Western Europe and political unity have been urged by Paul Ramadier, French Minister of National Defense, as the best guarantee against an atom war. seamen to fight the flames. The fire out, the crew went next door for coffee. The infant son of the host, Leo Shouest, then swallowed rat poison and one of the officers Lt. Hernando Barriga, gave him an effective antidote—epson salts. . . . The Army has placed two top-ranking generals in new key posts. Lt. Gen. Wade H. Haislip was sworn in as Army Chief of Staff and got his fourth star. Maj. Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther was sworn in as Deputy Chief of Staff in Charge of Plans and Combat Operations. He got his third star.

A MODERN PAULETTE REVERE—Marnae Modeen, Capital Air Lines "Red Feather Courier," delivers a personal message concerning Atlanta's Community Chest Drive from Henry Ford, II, National Chairman, to Mayor Hartsfield and Ivan Allen, Jr., Atlanta Drive Chairman, on the steps of City Hall. Miss Modeen, acting as personal emissary for Ford, will visit 70 cities along Capital routes, to assist local Chest campaigns. Yesterday she officially opened Chest campaign headquarters in East Point and Decatur, and prompted Mayor Hartsfield to issue a proclamation designating October as Red Feather Month and urging "all our citizens to support this great cause." The horse, third method of transportation to be used by Miss Modeen in arriving at City Hall, is Chico Lindo, palomino stallion owned by Jack Chambers.

Minton Wins Senators as Court Meets

WASHINGTON— (AP) —A brief formal session yesterday marked the opening of a new Supreme Court term expected to produce historic decisions on racial segregation and Congress' right to inquire into Communism.

It lasted a scant 20 minutes. About the time it was breaking up, the Senate Judiciary Committee a few hundred feet away approved by a nine to two vote the selection of Federal Judge Sherman Minton for a place on the Court.

Expected Senate confirmation may give the Court a full complement of nine members by the time it meets again next Monday. But Justice Douglas is not expected to be present for weeks. He was gravely injured Sunday when he was thrown from a horse in Washington's Cascade Mountains.

Today's session was given over principally to Chief Justice Vinson's tribute to the late Justices Frank Murphy and Wiley B. Rutledge.

Justice Tom C. Clark, the Court's newest member, took his place for the first time at the extreme end of the bench to Vinson's left. Clark, former Attorney General, had been sworn in previously. Vinson took formal note of this.

Senator Ferguson, Republican, Michigan, had wanted to question Minton, a former Senator, about his support of the ill-fated court reorganization plan advanced by the late President Roosevelt in 1937.

In a letter to the Committee, Minton recalled that he was then assistant Democratic whip in the Senate and he said, "Understandably, I strongly supported those legislative measures recommended by the administration."

Vinson, reading gravely from notes, said the Court had been saddened by the deaths of Murphy and Rutledge, both of whom he said were "stricken in the fullness of their great powers."

Liquor Tax Refund Asked In Warehouse-Levy Fight

Attorney Dan Duke made another move yesterday in an effort to throw out Georgia's $7,000,000 liquor warehouse tax.

Duke, representing former Liquor Wholesaler Robert Lee, of Atlanta, asked Revenue Commissioner Charles Redwine for a refund of $23,721.

This was the amount, Duke charged, which was "erroneously and illegally" collected from Lee as liquor warehouse charges.

Duke said the State has raised the fee from 50 cents a gallon to $4 a gallon and this figure is "unreasonable, excessive and arbitrary."

He said State law only gives the Revenue Commissioner power to charge a rental on each square foot of liquor warehouse floor space.

The Commissioner, without specific legislative authorization, does not have power "to go into the business of operating a warehouse for profit in order to raise revenue," Duke said in his petition to Redwine.

Duke already has filed a court suit against former Revenue Commissioner Glenn Phillips demanding a refund of fees paid to Phillips.

The formal request to Redwine, if refused, would pave the way for a court suit against the present Commissioner directly attacking the warehouse charge.

Work of YWCA Featured at Council Meet

By THOMAS M. ELLIOTT

At the Atlanta Christian Council yesterday Mrs. Doris Lockerman and Mrs. Mamie K. Taylor, Co-Chairwomen of the Atlanta YWCA Committee on Public Relations, presented a program featuring the work done by that organization. In the absence of President Harrison McMains, G. E. Millican, Vice President, presided over the business session.

After a preliminary statement by Mrs. Lockerman relative to the work done by the YWCA through its specialized groups, representatives of those groups presented discussions of their special features of interest.

Miss Gladys DeWitt told of work done through the business women's group, Miss Annie Belle Swaney spoke of "Y" work among the young women engaged in the city's industrial life, and Miss Sue Peek gave a statement as to the "Y's" work in promoting the religious and health interests of all members.

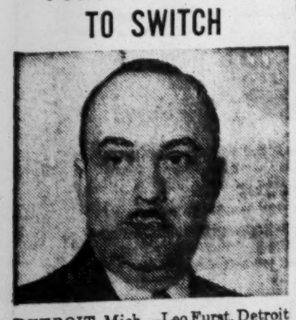

Missionary Faces Board Decision

The Southern Home Mission Board here will decide this week whether or not to reinstate a young missionary who has been called a "disturbing influence" among the Seminole Indians in Florida.

Kenneth A. Marmon, of Fort Myers, Superintendent of the Seminole Indian Agency, made the charge and said a delegation from one of the reservations came to tell authorities they did not wish to retain Stanley Walker Smith, 38-year-old missionary.

Dr. J. P. Rounds, Superintendent of Indian missions for the Mission Board, who went to the reservation this week, said many of the Indians were "standing behind Smith. Rounds was expected back in Atlanta last night and the Board is due to act within a week.

New Orleans Cotton Futures Advance

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—Cotton futures advanced here Monday on trade buying and short covering. Closing prices were steady, 25 cents to 55 cents a bale higher.

A good part of the demand was stimulated by lower private crop estimates, wet weather in large areas of the belt, further reports of a good demand for spot cotton in interior markets and favorable interpretations of Washington news.

Hedge selling and long realizing furnished the bulk of the contracts.

Mill Buying Firms New York Cotton

NEW YORK — (AP) — Cotton futures were firm on aggressive mill buying Monday. Offerings were scarce and this in turn induced covering by local traders.

But sales continued heavy at ten primary markets with most of the cotton believed to be moving to mills which have a large volume of orders for cotton goods. Traders awaited development of farm legislation scheduled for Senate debate.

Futures closed 20 to 50 cents a bale higher than the previous close.

Buying Spurt Lifts Stock Prices

NEW YORK—(AP)—A spurt of buying sparked the stock market into life late in the session Monday and sent prices up by fractions to more than a point.

The market toiled along most of the day without enthusiasm until the final hour when the upturn took hold. Fractional losses were turned into small gains, and stocks just over the plus line extended their advance.

Nevertheless, there was nothing to get excited about in the market's performance. Trading on the whole was the slowest in nearly a month. Traders regarded the gains merely as further evidence of the market's resistance to strike news.

Rails turned in the strongest performance as a group. Motors and oils also made a good showing.

Steels sagged most of the day, but closed unchanged to higher among the leaders. Radio and television issues breasted the early downtrend and held to the topside throughout, ending with additions of fractions to more than a point.

Golds, which long have been a popular hedge against inflation and monetary uncertainties, held up well almost all day, but they dropped as the day wore on and ended mixed.

Utilities were mixed but mostly lower. Commonwealth & Southern was the most active issued and reached a new high of 5½ up ¼. General Public Utilities also reached a new high and closed at 15⅞ up ½. It was the third most active issue. Admiral Corp., on its good television production showing, touched a new high and closed at 25⅞ up ¼.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks added .3 of a point at 65.9, only a shade below its year's high of 66.2. The industrial component of the average was up .4 of a point, rails gained .3 of a point, and utilities lost .1 of a point.

There were 928 individual issues traded of which 404 advanced and 280 declined. That is one of the narrowest markets in about a month.

Volume of business also was at the lowest point in about a month at 760,000 shares as against 1,100,000 on Friday. That market was the 15th in a row passing the million share mark.

Monday's advance uncovered 37 new highs for the year as compared with 38 new highs reached on Friday. There was only one new low.

The strength of Monday's market was regarded in Wall Street as further evidence that investors are not alarmed at the long term effects of current strikes and other business uncertainties. So far, Wall Street has all but ignored strike news.

Brokers warned, however, that this attitude cannot continue forever if the strikes in steel and coal are prolonged and start affecting allied industries and businesses. Meanwhile they are sitting tight to determine just what is likely to happen.

The curb market was mostly higher with some good gains including Cities Service, Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., Lone Star Gas, and Steel Co. of Canada. Losses were made by Electric Bond & Share, Wentworth Manufacturing Co., Niagara Hudson Power, and National Union Radio. Trading amounted to 160,000 shares compared with 250,000 Friday.

Bond market trading was the slowest in about a month with small losses outnumbering gains. U. S. Government issues in the over the counter market were a shade higher in the long-term categories.

Norge Chief Sees Upsurge Continuing

The appliance industry will end up with a good record for the year if it can continue without major strikes, George P. F. Smith, President of Norge Division, Borg-Warner Corporation, said yesterday at the opening of a two-day sales meeting at the Ansley Hotel of Norge distributors and salesmen from this area.

"The appliance business," he added, "is good. We expect business to continue to be good. Everything points to it, and there has been no slackening of demand since the upsurge began last July."

John A. Underwood, Vice President in Charge of Sales, who also addressed the group, lauded the independent system of distribution, terming it "the most economical method of distributing mass produced products."

In addition to talks by Smith and Underwood, both newly appointed officials, new lines of lower-priced Norge electric and gas ranges and conventional washers were presented. One of the new products to be featured is a new six-cubic-foot refrigerator with the firm's exclusive automatic defrosting system.

Other Norge representatives present were H. L. Clary, Director of Sales; R. C. Connell, Field Manager; Dean Spencer, Manager of Refrigerated Sales; H. L. Holbrook, Manager of Electric Range Sales; E. J. Kanker, Manager of Gas Range Sales, and Paul N. Berner, Manager of Home Laundry Equipment Sales. R. E. L. Tolbert, Regional Manager, is in charge of the meetings.

The area represented included Atlanta, Charleston, S. C., Charlotte, N. C., the Tennessee points of Nashville, Chattanooga, Johnson City and Knoxville: Birmingham, Ala., and Jacksonville, Fla.

Strong Grain Market Paced by Soybeans

CHICAGO—(AP)—A strong market developed in grains on the Board of Trade Monday. The upturn was led by soybeans, which jumped more than 3 cents at times. Eastern commission houses were good buyers of beans.

Wet weather in the Midwest influenced both soybeans and corn. It was expected to delay completion of the soybean harvest and hinder the drying out of corn.

More important as a support for the corn futures advance was pronounced strength in the cash market. Buyers were bidding as much as 18 cents over the December future for No. 1 and No. 2 yellow corn. This was an advance of 2½ cents in the premium as compared with Saturday.

Gains in wheat were led by the May and July deliveries, both of which made new seasonal highs. Reports that producers in the Southwest were seeding less acreage to 1950 Winter wheat spurred demand. A Northwest elevator was a heavy buyer of December wheat.

Oats, rye and lard joined in the upward movement.

Wheat closed ⅝-2½ higher, December $2.14¼-2.14⅜; corn was 1¼-1⅜ higher, December $1.18⅝-1.18¾; oats were ¼-⅝ higher, December 67¾-67⅞, rye was ½-1¾ higher, December $1.47¼, soybeans were 2½-3½ higher, November $2.31¾-2.31½, and lard was 5 to 18 cents a hundred pounds higher, October $11.45.

Calls for 6-Point Plan To Ready Rails for Defense

A railroad chief called yesterday for a six-point program to help keep ready for action one of the nation's most vital systems of defense—the railroads.

A. L. M. Wiggins, of Hartsville, S. C., banker, merchant, and President of the Atlantic Coast Line, Louisville and Nashville and N. C. tional Defense Transportation Association Convention here that, otherwise, state ownership and operation might come through "financial malnutrition" of the railroads. He warned that nationalization would take in all other forms of transport if it should come.

Wiggins spoke at a luncheon meeting in the Atlanta Biltmore. The convention will continue here today with a number of speakers representing all phases of transportation and the tie-up with defense action.

More than 250 delegates to the convention also heard Adm. A. J. Wellings blast at civilian critics of armed service "brass hats," and assert that the Army and Air Forces are giving the Navy complete and wholehearted co-operation in those phases of their services that the Navy is taking over.

He asserted "high-ranking military brass is doing a top-notch job of unifying the armed services in spite of unfair criticism from persons who don't know what they're talking about. . . . I believe the military brass is handling the tremendous job before them with the utmost efficiency and at the least possible cost to the taxpayer."

In his own field, he said, the Navy has a tremendous job in taking over the Army's transport ships, but it should be completed in a year to six months. He scoffed at reports the Navy would fire civilian employees used on Army transports, saying it would be "foolish to throw away all of the trained Army personnel who required years to be moulded into an efficient working team."

Gen. George J. Finch, of Atlanta, revealed that the Air Forces would take over all the work of evacuating military medical patients, eliminating the need for hospital ships, and trains and permitting a closer-knit medical program, as part of unification.

Brig. Gen. Frank S. Bessor, Jr., Assistant Chief of Transportation, U. S. Army, commented that the friendliness and co-operation of the Atlanta meeting "typifies the present pattern of unification."

Wiggins' six points for preserving the railroads: (1) adoption of a national transportation policy for fair and impartial regulation of all modes of transportation to preserve the best advantages of each; (2) a unification of Government control to eliminate inequities; (3) recognition of a new era in transportation that has outmoded many laws drawn up when railroads were without competition; (4) greater equality in tax treatment so that railroads would not be paying taxes that benefit other modes of transportation; (5) assumption by labor of the responsibility to give an economic day's work for a day's pay, a "fair exchange of productive effort for compensation paid;" (6) multiplied efforts by railroad management to improve efficiency, satisfy the public and promote safety.

Railroads' held-down earnings are robbing it of capital needed for replacement of locomotives, freight cars and other equipment, which is progressively dwindling and has been for two decades, he said. How this would affect defense he pointed up by recalling that in World War II, railroads hauled 97 percent of organized troop movements; 90 percent of all Army and Navy freight movement, and more than two-thirds of all freight of all kinds.

Atlanta Retail Stores Report Sales Increases

Retail sales in Atlanta were 31 percent greater in August that in July, the U. S. Bureau of the Census reported yesterday. A 58 percent increase in department store sales, 28 percent in household appliances, and 12 percent among motor vehicle dealers was recorded.

In Augusta and Columbus gains were recorded, some substantial, for August of this year over last, for the eight-month period, and for August over July.

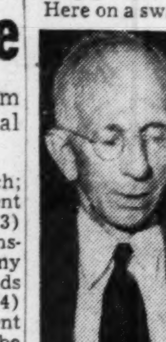

Macon experienced a drop in sales in August from the same month last year and for the eight-month period, but showed a nine percent gain in August over July of this year. In Savannah sales were up five percent in August of this year over last.

Texas Co. Renews Tech Fellowship

Georgia Tech officials yesterday announced the Texas Company has renewed a graduate fellowship in textile engineering. The fellowship, to be carried on under the direction of Dr. F. L. Sweigert, Dean of the Division of Graduate Studies, will permit continued investigations in the textile lubrication field.

GE Executive Sees Business Getting Firm

Business activity throughout the country is firming up, says L. M. Nichols, Comptroller of General Electric Supply Corporation, Bridgeport, Conn.

L. M. Nichols

Here on a swing through the country to get inventories and budgeting lined up throughout GE Supply's network of wholesale houses, Nichols said in an interview yesterday that there is plenty of buying power in the land.

There has been a revival of both industrial and consumer confidence," said Nichols.

The South and Southwest felt the business hesitation early this year less than other sections, he said, because both were expanding rapidly in industry. Younger and faster-growing areas, the South and Southwest are farther from having their needs filled, he said. The hesitation, though, was normal, Nichols asserted. And business in general handled its inventories well. Now, there is actual shortage in many lines, he said, because of the caution shown in advance ordering. Prices are on lower, more healthy ground, reflecting reductions in raw material prices.

Industrial research has meant much to farm areas such as the South, said Nichols, and it may afford a partial answer to farm crop surpluses through discovery of new uses for farm products in industry.

With General Electric for 30 years, Nichols has been comptroller of the Supply Corporation since its start as a separate unit 30 years ago.

Capital Airlines Wins Merit Award

Yellow crookneck squash was easier at 1.25-1.75, few 2.00 per bushel, and poorer, 50c-1.00 per hamper. Crowder peas were steady selling mostly 1.25-1.50 per bushel. Georgia bushel baskets of Porto Ricans were offered freely at 1.50-1.75, few better grades 2.00-2.25 and best high as 2.50, with large and small mostly 1.00-1.25 bulk per bushel. Long Growth Seen For U. S. Economy By Middle of '50

America's economy, still in a sound position, will begin a long term of growth by the middle of 1950, Charles E. Hodges, President of the American Mutual Liability Insurance Company, of Boston, Mass., predicted yesterday at the opening of a two-day session of the firm's Southern district and branch managers at the Henry Grady Hotel.

C. E. Hodges

Mullaney, Secretary and Underwriting Manager; Arthur Johnson, Vice President and Engineering Manager; E. L. Parker, Treasurer; and F. A. Moeller, Vice President and Claim Manager, also spoke.

Steel, Coal Strikes Slow Bond Market

NEW YORK—(AP)—The steel and coal strikes took all the starch out of the corporate bond market Monday. Trading slacked off to the slowest pace since the Midsummer doldrums.

Price changes were distributed evenly between the plus and minus columns and for the most part were confined to small fractions.

An almost total absence of demand was offset in part by the fact there was very little selling pressure in evidence.

Railroad loans moved narrowly, with a hint of a slow movement toward the downside.

U. S. Treasury bonds showed minor improvement in quiet over the counter trading.

Stock exchange trading in bonds bogged down in September. The coal strike that started Sept. 19 and the threat of the steel strike were chiefly responsible for a slump in turnover to $55,413,000, compared with $66,223,100 in August and $62,901,900 in September, 1948.

Total transactions reached $3,000,000 or more on only five of the month's 21 trading sessions.

COFFEE MARKET

NEW YORK—(AP)—Santos coffee futures "S" and "D" advanced sharply Monday on trade and Brazilian buying. Some deliveries advanced the daily trading limit of 150 points. A leading roaster, with national distribution, announced an increase in roaster prices. Merchants thought the advance would become general because of rising green coffee prices. Private advices also stressed drought conditions in Brazil which threatened to curtail production of the 1950-51 crop. Harvesting of that crop starts about July next year. The green coffee market was firm with roasters showing more inclination to buy. Coffee spot Santos No. 4 closed at 31½-32n. Santos bourbons 3s at 32.75-33.95A and 5s 31.50-32.45A. Santos "S" futures closed 140 to 150 higher, sales 294 contracts.

A Good Record--Let's Better It

Georgia, too frequently way down on the list of States in the enumeration of various accomplishments, has a record in one field of which we should all be proud.

Last year, on a per capita basis, only rich, progressive Delaware did a better job of rehabilitating the physically handicapped than Georgia. Our total of 3,075 disabled citizens restored to productive activity was exceeded only by California, Michigan, Illinois and New York, all with considerably higher populations.

Georgia's good record is due largely to the splendid and continuing efforts of the Vocational Rehabilitation Division of the State Department of Education. But it has had—as it must have—the close co-operation of the business leaders of the State.

The 3,000 physically handicapped Georgians rehabilitated last year have been turned, in most instances, from economic liabilities into producing assets. More than 2,200 of them previously were dependent upon their families or various welfare agencies. Now all are self-supporting, earning an aggregate of nearly $4,500,000 annually.

Rehabilitation of the physically handicapped is a good investment for the Government.

Hiring of them is a good idea for business.

Properly trained, a physically handicapped person is capable not only of doing a job equally well, but more often than not he makes a more stable employee.

More and more employers are learning by experience the truth underlying the slogan: "It Pays to Hire the Handicapped."

You Can't Legislate Morality

Although he may not have been conscious of it, President Truman made a considerable contribution to the advancement of civil rights yesterday when he dropped his demand for a Fair Employment Practices Bill by the present session of Congress.

The longer civil rights legislation is postponed, the better are the chances of civil rights becoming an actuality. And the less the nation is stirred by the demagogues on both sides, the sooner the goal which all thoughtful persons seek will be reached.

Civil rights have become too much a political question, too little an ethical one. The bitter debate attendant to consideration of an FEPC bill by the current session of Congress would preclude the possibility of it adding anything more to its too-brief list of accomplishments. And even if the FEPC could somehow be enacted into law, it would only tend to aggravate and worsen the situation—particularly in the South, which is the admitted target.

We should have learned our lesson with the noble experiment that was the Volstead Act: You can't legislate morality.

Pads for Pedestrians?

An Indianapolis boy, hit by a car while crossing the street, escaped serious injury because he was wearing his football suit.

The doctor said that presence of the helmet undoubtedly saved the lad from a skull fracture.

Maybe the practice should become universal—football togs for all who dare to be pedestrians.

Or would the reckless, often ruthless, motorist see the pads as a challenge to hit harder?

We Don't Have Any Time To Lose

The House Armed Services Committee tomorrow is scheduled to resume its investigation of the B-36 bomber, which actually is a probe of the dispute raging between the Navy and Air Force on roles and missions in combat.

When these hearings were begun back in the Summer we urged the Committee to review the entire defense setup with view to recommending to Congress a balanced program which would enable the country to meet any emergency.

Up until hearings were recessed several weeks ago, the Committee had heard only testimony which supported the efficiency and fighting effectiveness of the B-36. We thought then, and it still is our opinion, that while the performance of this single plane is of considerable importance, the Committee was completely overlooking the basic question involved.

That question is the over-all strategy by which this nation will conquer or be conquered should war come again.

The wide difference of opinion among experts, and the very intensity of the feeling on each side of the Navy-Air Force struggle, places the responsibility squarely upon Congress and the President.

During the Committee's recess has come the President's announcement that Russia has succeeded in setting off an atomic explosion. That means the great advantage we once held over our only potential adversary now is gone. And, with that advantage gone, it is imperative that the strategy which once rested solely on an assumption of a monopoly in atomic weapons now be revised.

If the House Committee fails to make the necessary study and review we think President Truman ought to appoint a commission to do so.

We don't know how much time we have, but it is not as much as we had thought. And we don't have any to lose.

GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

He Turns Criticism to His Own Use

WASHINGTON—President Truman has shown a remarkable adeptness for turning the words of his critics against them. He has done it with such effectiveness that some of the terms of disparagement hurled at his Administration by opponents may well turn out to be Democratic rallying cries in the next national campaign. Budding politicos might take lessons from the President's technique. Under no circumstances can he be rated as an amateur. The events of the last election alone are enough to cause him to go down in history as one of the most successful political strategists of our times. He won out when all of the experts were marking him down for certain defeat—and he won in the face of the greatest division of his party the Democrats have suffered in years.

Before that Mr. Truman had won another race for the Senate in Missouri which may be considered remarkable in view of the apparent odds against him at the time. That was back in 1940 when he was up for re-election after serving his first term in the Senate. He had been a protege of the old Pendergast machine of Kansas City, the leader of which was indicted and jailed for income tax frauds.

Mr. Truman faced a bitter fight in that campaign. He was opposed in the primary by two of the then strongest men in the party in the State—the Governor and the district attorney who headed up the prosecution of the Pendergast machine. Fearing that he would be hopelessly defeated, his friends urged him to retire from the race. Mr. Truman stayed in, and to the amazement of most of the experts, he won handily. Then before the opposition could recover from the shock, he went on to win in the general election which followed closely afterward.

The President's opponents should have learned by now that he is no amateur at the game. Perhaps he comes about it naturally from being associated in his earlier days with one of the most powerful political machines in the country.

He has a disarming way of doing things in an apparently artless manner. But there is a studied effort in much that he does. And it is usually effective, just as his whistle-stop campaign produced results last year while all of the professionals were writing him off as a sure loser.

The way the President has been turning the words of his critics against them of late is another example of his political astuteness. Take the "planned economy" epithet hurled at his Fair Deal program by the critics earlier in the year. In his various public utterances he set out to show that planning, after all, was really a good thing, since most people find it expedient to plan, more or less, for the future. Without proper plans, he reminded, we never would have been able to pile up the victory we did in the late war.

Soon after that, the critics gave up the "planned economy" attack and conjured up a new phrase of the "welfare state," which was supposed to cover the multitude of sins imputed to the Administration under such vague terms as "collectivism," "regimentation" and "statism."

Mr. Truman took up this new challenge in one of his most recent speeches. He proceeded to show that the Constitution itself specifically charged the Government with responsibility for "promoting the general welfare." That precisely was the intent, he said, of those sections of his program calling for low-cost housing for the people, "fair labor laws," aid to education and health, together with extension of social security.

The term, "welfare state," Mr. Truman said, finds its roots in the Constitution. He did not object to it as defining the aims of his program, but did take the critics to task for trying to make "scare words" out of it.

The way the President has handled the situation makes it clear that the Democrats will probably place a great deal of emphasis on the word "welfare" as a keynote to the coming campaign. In that way, the President's opponents may have provided him with a valuable campaign instrument.

In turning the words of the critics against them, Mr. Truman is putting these words to work for the Democratic Party. It is not every political strategist who is able to do that. Sooner or later the opposition will come to learn that it is dealing with no amateur in the White House. It takes an expert to perform the miracle the President did last November.

The Fairs Are Really Revealing

This is the time for fairs.

The smell of hamburgers rides the stirring breezes of Autumn. The aroma of the sizzling hotdog mingles with the glowing leaves and dallies with them in their dance with the wind.

The fairs are a part of our fabric. They are—if they are worth their salt and worth going to—the place where jars of canned pickles and beans and soup mixtures are in competition. They are where quilts are judged and where the largest pumpkin and the best ears of corn glow goldenly and warmly from the benches.

They are where the sad-eyed cattle toss their heads and gaze pensively, and with slow chewing of their cuds, upon the visitors at the barrier. They are where proud boys and girls show calves and pigs, and where pens of prize chickens cluck and scratch and preen their necks.

There are fireworks and horses; the midway and the church eating booth, where money is sought to hie the missionaries on to the heathen or to put a new roof on the church or to buy a new piano for the Sunday School room.

The midway attracts the youngsters. . . .

But the fair which does not contain its backbone of exhibits will die. The exhibits are the measuring stick of the community in which they are held.

Mississippi The fair that has interested me most was one I read about. Hodding Carter, writing from the Mississippi Delta, reported they were having this year at Greenville the first fair in years—and the first real fair the Delta had ever had.

In a very real sense, it is a Southern story.

The Delta has for generations been a place of, for and by cotton. And nothing else.

This year the entry list shows classes for beef and dairy cattle, with prizes for Herefords, Jerseys, Brahmans, Guernseys and other breeds. There are prizes for small grains—on the Delta, mind you—and for vegetable and fruit exhibits.

There will be 4-H Club exhibits, as well as FFA attractions. The homemakers will show their quilts, cakes, rolls and their curtains and interior decoration ideas.

The machinery people are really going in great numbers. They are widening their market each year in the Delta as the mule goes and the flame-weeders, cultivators and the pickers prove their worth. The best cotton-picking machine may yet be a pair of strong black hands, as one grower told me some years ago. But the machine is winning. And fast.

I was startled, two years ago, to see a grain elevator rising out of the flat horizon of the Delta and to learn that there in the midst of cotton was a surplus of oats.

Westward The cotton is following the advice of Horace Greeley and going west. The Delta will grow cotton forever, probably, because it is the finest cotton land in this country. The quality of the cotton is good and it is being improved by the really fine experiment station.

But the handwriting of change is on the wall.

Two thirds of this year's crop of cotton will be harvested west of the Mississippi in the fields of Texas, Arizona, New Mexico and California.

They have irrigation and are mechanized, completely so save for the remaining mules in Texas. Therefore, their yield is twice that of the rich Delta. Their quality is improving. The Delta can compete for a long time because of its quality, but never in yield.

Also, the West doesn't have to poison for weevils as do the other cotton States east of the Mississippi. Their costs are lower.

Supply We haven't got too much cotton now. And the carryover won't be awkward. But give us, as Carter says, five years of carryovers, and where will we then be when the competitive costs are down and the taxpayers view the support price cost?

Price and price supports are part of the picture.

It is no wonder that more and more land goes to grass in the old cotton States, and that more and more attention is being paid to new crops and to bringing in processing plants to fabricate the best raw materials we have—our crops.

Fairs, especially county fairs, point to the future. Visitors to a county fair can obtain a cross-section picture of what the county is doing, whether it is progressing or dying agriculturally.

The midway should be just a sideshow. The pulse and blood-pressure of the counties are in the exhibits. Take a look at yours.

JOSEPH AND STEWART ALSOP

GOP Veers Toward Isolationism

WASHINGTON—No one seems to have noticed it, but a powerful attempt to restore out-and-out isolationism as official Republican doctrine has been going on for some time. The opportunity was provided by the 1950 senatorial contests in the two key States of Ohio and Illinois. And ever since they began their campaigns, Sen. Robert A. Taft and Rep. Everett Dirksen have been seeking to make the Ohio and Illinois elections into eye-catching proofs of isolationism's reviving appeal to the voters.

The case of Rep. Dirksen is not especially significant, unless the essential squalor of political human nature happens to excite your morbid interest. In brief, Dirksen was a fervent convert to the internationalism of Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, until just about the time when he was tempted to seek the Illinois Senate seat now occupied by Majority Leader Scott Lucas.

The Colonel Unfortunately, the internationalism of Sen. Vandenberg is no better than the foreign policy of Benedict Arnold in the eyes of Col. Robert R. McCormick. The Colonel owns a controlling interest in the Illinois Republican Party. And by some peculiar magic, the straying Dirksen saw the error of his ways, and opened his senatorial campaign on a blatantly isolationist note, with the Colonel's benign blessing. It remains to be seen how much good this will do Dirksen, whose appeal to the Illinois independent vote largely lay in his reputation for not belonging to Col. McCormick.

Sen. Taft, on the other hand, is a man of conviction as well as a politician. Being a man of conviction, he has never more than briefly wavered in his isolationism. And as a politician, he has evidently calculated that it would be good campaign tactics to change the venue, as it were, from the Taft-Hartley Act and other domestic issues. Hence Taft has been stressing his oppostion to the bipartisan foreign policy, with special fervor and intensity, in almost all his opening speeches to the Ohio voters.

Until 10 days ago, Sen. Taft's campaign strategy was considered very smart politics indeed by most of the political soothsayers. As long as three years ago, Sen. Vandenberg himself began to warn that the American electorate in general, and the Midwestern voters in particular, would eventually rebel against the burdens imposed by a constructive foreign policy.

Signs This year, with the tension easing in Europe and the Kremlin taking a rather quieter line, congressional leaders of all shades of opinion thought they detected the beginning of this voters' rebellion. Sen. Vandenberg repeatedly acknowledged he saw the signs. Indeed, he long ago told ECA Administrator Paul Hoffman that the European recovery appropriations would be slashed to ribbons by the next Congress, unless it was possible to point to tangible Marshall Plan results. And this partly explains why Hoffman has been pressing for immediate European economic union, almost using shotgun wedding tactics.

In short, when he launched his campaign, Sen. Taft had good reasons for believing that there was an isolationist tide for him to ride on. Under the circumstances, the Senator must have suffered unusual anguish when he heard President Truman's announcement of an "atomic explosion somewhere in Russia."

The Bomb With the development of the Beria bomb, a pattern has been repeated again, on the largest and most dramatic scale, that long ago began to drive the Republican isolationists almost to distraction. It has happened half a score of times already, that the American people would be just comfortably climbing into bed, and getting ready to put their heads under the covers, when the Kremlin kicked them out again. It is difficult to believe that this last great event has not done the job, for go-out-and-out-isolationist appeals are bound to sound pretty odd, against the lurid backdrop of a Soviet Alamogordo.

It must be added that this thought does not appear, as yet, to have discouraged either Sen. Taft himself or the lesser leaders of his kidney. Judging by the Senator's comments on the grim new situation that now confronts this country, he is still firmly committed to basing his appeal in Ohio on strong isolationism. This means, of course, that at the next session of Congress, Taft will be far more active than before in his attacks on the bipartisan foreign policy.

At the same time, the President has permitted bipartisanship to be weakened, and will now be forced to present Congress with new measures going considerably beyond those which have already aroused Taft's ire. In short, although so little time is left to us, the whole next year may be wasted in angry debate, before the election comes and the American people are permitted to give their verdict on their own future.

In the Light of the New Bomb

Joe Can Have That Rat Hole

Russia has recognized the Communist government of China.

That was as unexpected as the yolk in an egg.

Everyone recognizes what he sees in a mirror.

There couldn't have been any doubt about the Kremlin recognizing the Chinese Communists . . . not in view of the length of time it has been financing them.

About the only thing this latest development proves is that, for all their revolutionary ideas, the Soviets still cling to a few of the old conventions such as public recognition, by the parent, of legitimate offsprings.

Incidentally, I may be wrong but I've got a hunch that, before he gets through nursing this latest addition to his family, Joe Stalin is going to think of Tito as a model child.

Conquering China is one thing, controlling it is another. I can think of no better way to win the cold war than to give the Russians a deed to China and sit back and watch it bleed them to death.

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

The Constitution welcomes letters on either side of any subject. They should not exceed 200 words and must be signed, although names will be withheld on request. We regret none can be returned. Address all letters to Editor Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

A. & P. Suit

Editor Constitution: There recently appeared in your paper a full-page ad in the interest of A. & P. which asked a question, "Do You Want Your A. & P. Put Out of Business?" We believe a question of this nature should be answered, and although the Attorney General released to the press an answer, most papers which carried the ad did not carry the answer. This association represents more than 200 persons in the foods business, some of whom do business with A. & P., who are vitally interested in an answer to this question and desire that this answer be presented through the same medium which was used in asking the question.

The Great A. & P. was convicted of illegal business practices under the Sherman Act in the U. S. District Court at Danville, Ill., September, 1946. The conviction was affirmed in the U. S. Court of Appeals, Chicago, February, 1949, by unanimous vote of the judges. No further appeal was made and the defendant paid a fine of $175,000. Afterwards the U. S. Department of Justice held many conferences with the A. & P. in an effort to effect remedial action without the necessity for a civil suit. These negotiations ended in failure. Having lost its case before our courts and being unwilling to effect changes suggested by the U. S. Department of Justice to prevent a repetition of these violations, A. & P. now publicly appeals to its customers through full-page newspaper ads. In asking them to rally to its support it does not suggest how they may help. Obviously, however, this could only be done by changing the law of the land, by changing the minds of the judges in our courts at the various levels, or by changing the policy of the Anti-Trust Division of the U. S. Department of Justice. The chances are that none of these things will happen and that A. & P. will lose out in this civil suit. Along what lines its reorganization will be effected is problematical.

The public interest lies in the enforcement of our antitrust acts which A. & P. says are good laws. The public interest lies in the preservation of our existing system of judicial procedures. A. & P. would not risk taking its case before the U. S. Supreme Court. The public interest also lies in vigorous policing of the decisions of our courts by the Department of Justice and of effective action by the Federal Trade Commission.

The public has no reason to believe that its welfare is best left in the hands of a ruthless combine of distributor, processor and manufacturer; one largely owned by the Hartford Brothers, which has wilfully violated the Sherman Act. It has no good reason to believe that food prices will be higher and living standards lower as is claimed by A. & P. Nor has it good reason to believe that keen competition in the food field will not continue to prevail and that the American system of efficient food distribution will face destruction. It will further not believe that A. & P. is being persecuted because it is large and integrated and that such action is a forerunner for the destruction of large national distributors in other fields.

It would seem more than likely that purchasers for A. & P. properties can be found who efficiently operate and yet stay within the bounds of law. That the Hartford Brothers have made a great success is unquestioned; that they elevate themselves to the position of demigods is a human weakness; that the public interest lies in the preservation of our American system of fair competitive enterprise and the conservation of the integrity of our system of justice is fundamental; and that the public will not subscribe to the claim of A. & P. martyrdom just makes good plain common sense. The Hartford Brothers may well take a part of their admitted enormous potential capital gains, and endow courses in the schools of our country on chains of lawful living.

The opinion of the public on this issue is vitally important. If our independent and competitive enterprise is the backbone of the nation, then farmers, professional men, and people employed in all types of industry and commerce must be vigilant for its preservation and repel self-righteous and siren-like appeals. Ninety-five percent of all business is "small business," which only seeks equitable opportunity of service and a square deal. Unfair competition is a rock that, if left unwatched, will wreck our ship of a strong America. The courts agree that the Great A. & P. has misused its power of greatness. The wheels of justice have turned slowly but surely.

DeKalb Owes Her a Nickel

Editor Constitution: Last week I gathered together the neighbornood children and took them to the DeKalb Fair. And my son won a chicken for a nickel. A bargain, I thought, until I had to carry the squawking thing for three hours. And had to build a pen to house the thing!

On arriving home I collected the ax, hammer, nails, chicken wire and posthole digger and started in. First off, I whacked my left wrist with the ax. Ha, I said, that's nothing—and proceeded to wrench my right shoulder with the posthole digger. Hm! Then I tore my dress on the chicken wire and got nicely tangled—and collected about a hundred scratches getting out of that. But I got the pen built—oh, yes! And triumphantly installed the chicken.

A little while later I went out to see how His Majesty liked things and what did I find? Three tail feathers where he had escaped! And I refuse to put an ad in your paper for a tailless chicken!

So I think DeKalb County owes me something, since now I won't even have the benefit of a lovely chicken dinner, come Sunday. Maybe the County will return my nickel—or pay for an ad under Lost and Found. Think so?

Decatur. MRS. GENE BRIGHT.

Suggestion

Editor Constitution: I have noticed from time to time that many of the small towns have combined schools with their county.

This leaves a good building, owned by the city, to become unsightly, soon in bad condition, which the people need for many things.

I am of the opinion that a move could become popular to use these old school buildings as a community center, with emphasis on youth clubs or 'teen canteens. The adults in every town need to use these buildings as much as the young people.

The Chamber of Commerce or civic organization, the exservice clubs, garden clubs and all could use them and leave room for a library and games or dancing.

The Soil Conservation Service, the Forestry Service, the Park Service, the Power Company, and many others will furnish interesting 16 m.m. reels. A few suppers or plays will buy a projector. Many films are available free and many others very cheap.

In Europe, especially in the cold countries, the farmers and village citizens have regular night classes in varied subjects.

It seems we could do something along that line with our buildings which are not needed and not sell them at a loss.

THOMAS L. STOKES

Mr. Truman's $4,000 Prophecy

WASHINGTON—It was purely a coincidence, as we say, that a fellow turned up here in Washington and started passing out $100 bills in job lots about the time President Truman in Kansas City was forecasting a $4,000 annual income for every American family. About three-fourths of our families now have an annual $2,000 income, according to the President. He does not see why it could not reach $4,000 in view of what has happened in recent years, and why the national income could not advance from its present two hundred billion to three hundred billion a year.

The spectacle of a fellow passing out hundred-dollar bills here was too much for Republicans to take in silence, what with all their emphasis on the Truman spending program, and, sure enough, Rep. John Vorys, Republican, Ohio, came up very fast with the crack that the fellow ought not to be put in an institution, but ought to go into the Truman Cabinet.

There'll probably be more of such cracks—maybe better ones.

Just in passing, it might be interjected, good-humoredly, that Republicans might do better politically if they made fewer of such cracks at Mr. Truman's expense—though they add spice to our life here—and thought up some "Trumanisms" of their own that encouraged the folks and gave them something to look forward to.

This is not to indorse great spending programs, as such, nor to come out for national bankruptcy.

But Mr. Truman's prophecy has nothing to do with spending programs. What he did was to pay about the highest compliment possible to the American free enterprise system, about which Republicans are so fearful. For it is our great productive system that has made possible our present high standard, and can make possible still higher standards. Naturally, being a politician, the President took all the credit he could. Politicians are that way—going clear back to the "full dinner pail" which served the Republicans so well for so long in the last century.

Mr. Truman's prophecy gave him an opportunity to demonstrate that the free enterprise system has not broken down or been destroyed under his management of our national affairs nor by what happened in the preceding Roosevelt regime, despite complaints to that effect.

In his homey way he quipped that the $4,000-a-year family income was "no pipe dream," nor should it be, basing the future on past performance. It was, for instance, only so recently as 1936, when we were still struggling out of the depression, that Mordecai Ezekiel, Agriculture Department economist, astounded lots of people with his book—"$2,500 a Year, From Scarcity to Abundance"—that suggested such an income was possible for every family. They were shocked some more by another he published three years later—"Jobs for All."

It was only three years ago that the same skeptics hooted at Henry Wallace's book—"Sixty Million Jobs"—which already has come true.

At the peak of the prosperous twenties—in 1929, just before the awful crash—our national income was ninety billions a year. Today it is two hundred billions.

After that "millennium" of the twenties proved a delusion, we found it necessary to make certain adjustments in our economy, to establish the Federal Government in the role of "governor" to keep the economy in balance, as Marriner Eccles, Federal Reserve Chairman, put it. That was the first stage of the New Deal. It helped. It was helpful, also, in the second stage, when Congress established certain safeguards of a regulatory nature for our capitalistic system to prevent the excesses which had thrown it out of kilter and made it operate unfairly.

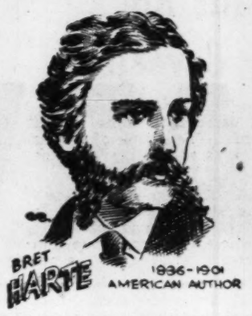

It was helpful in that era, too, when we made it possible for low-income groups to help themselves, through collective bargaining guarantees, through loans to farm tenants, and through investing, as a people, in great public projects, including power, irrigation and reclamation projects, to conserve our resources and open up new opportunities for our people.

Under all those, private enterprise has flourished, though many of them are under attack today.

It may be that some of Harry Truman's success with the voters is due to his hopeful belief in an expanding economy which appeals to the average American's native optimism.

This is a free tip to Republicans, and it doesn't require handing out hundred-dollar bills on the streets.

LAST WORDS FAMOUS

Just before he suddenly died of a hemorrhage, he remarked about a book he was reading—"THAT'S FINE—VERY FINE."

SENATOR SOAPER

ONE of the Navy's little newspapers notes the parade of the seasons: "This is the time of the year when the boys feel gallant and the girls feel buoyant."

VISITING American farmers who "look like a lot of Clark Gables" amaze the British, who must have missed "Panrell," the film biog in which Gable looked every inch a farmer.

LIGHT and pleasing to the touch, these new plastic dishes are thoroughly inadequate for rattling in a dishpan to register wifely disgruntlement.

AT Shreveport, oil is discovered under a U. S. air field—and very handy, too, though it fails to clear up Ed Wynn's query, "How do they know, when they build the filling station, they'll strike oil?"

COLOR helps in merchandising. One active tot in the neighborhood used up 14 bottles of mercurochrome before learning it was good for cuts.

THE aged counterfeiter's excuse was that he was needy and unwell. And perhaps—dusting off an old one—it was something he etched.

BOB CONSIDINE

Suddenly, They All Remember

NEW YORK—Hello? Yes, this is him. Who? Uncle Ben? Well! This is a surprise. Uncle Ben. It's been a long time. Lemme see, now, it was just about this time in 1947, wasn't it?

Yeah, feel fine, thanks. She's okay, too, if you like wives—ha, ha. Oh, they're all okay. In school, you know. Yeah, sure growing up. Seems like only yesterday, I always say. That's right, three.

You've been pretty busy since 1947, eh? Oh, forget it; that's okay about not calling since then.

Swell! It sure has been nice hearing from you again. It's nice to know that in a big cold town like New York a man has relatives thinking about him, and calling up to ask how's his health and things. Be seeing you soon, I hope, Uncle Ben, and thanks again for calling me up and . . . how zat?

You need six at Ebbets Field, eh? Right behind the Dodger bench. You'll even pay for them, eh? That's very sporting of you, Uncle Ben, but I don't have any. And I can't get any.

You see, everybody thinks the owners keep forcing World Series tickets on newspaper fellows, Uncle Ben. But it's a funny thing, about the Series. There not only ain't no tickets, except for a few regular customers, but everything is for cash, and as much as I'd like to. . . .

I'M A WHAT? Now, really Uncle Ben, just a minute ago you was saying how are you and how's tricks and my best to the Madam and something about those wonderful little kids of ours, and now you're calling me a . . . hello . . . hello? Operator, we were cut off. He hung up, eh?

You have another call for me? Hello? Yeah, this is him. Who? Well, I'll be a son o fa sea-cook! Joe Blough. I haven't heard from you since the night we became fraternity brothers together. Good old Eta Beta Pi, signet of brudderhood. How long has that been, Joe? Twenty-five years. Don't seem possible. Time flies, I always say.

Yeah. We been separated too long, you're righ. Oh, sure, I called you a few times. Yeah, left a message. Lemma see, there was the time we was put out of the apartment and couldn't get a place to go. Maybe you saw the picture of us in the Mirror, on the curb. Well, I remember you owned that hotel and maybe could get us in. So I called, but I couldn't get by your secretary and she said maybe you could call back that next Friday, or something.

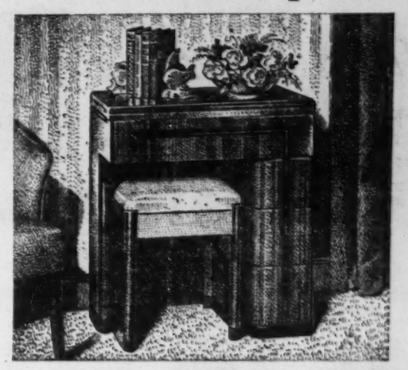

WHAT? You'll fire her. No. Jeepers. She said it wasn't her fault; that she was just protecting you from pests. Oh, sure, we made out okay. I got a place at the Y, myself, and learned to shoot baskets real dandy, but missed the wife and kids. I remind the columnists to remind their readers that tomorrow's their birthday.

Lunch some time? Sure. That's nice of you. At Club 42? Brother, I been trying to get in there for years. Thay say it's twice as big as Club 21 and gets both Humphrey Bogart and Jimmy Cagney, for fights. Must be wonderful, and I'll wait for your call. It certainly was swell of you to call. After all, us Eta Beta Pi guys—get it, Pi guy?—got to hang together, like we pledged. It sure is nice of . . .

Need a box at the stadium, you say? Well, that's a coincident. I ain't had two phone calls, except from the Hooper people, in two years. But today the phone's been ringing all day, with well-wishers, telling me about that nice rewrite I done on the piece showing the people answering that question—"Do you eat snakes?" As I was saying to my Uncle Ben a minute ago, I can't get to first base on Series tickets. Except they're behind a pole. And around Series time the clubs begin looking at reporters like they're lepers, and—even though you're willing to pay for the box, like you say — it's tough getting . . . Hello? Hello? Operator . . . operator!

FRED OTHMAN

He Can't Give Away His Coal Furnace

WASHINGTON—The greatest salesman in America turns out to be John L. Lewis. He works for nothing, peddling oil burners and fuel oil at a rate no other salesman ever achieved. Every time Eyebrows Lewis intones a pronunciamento against the coal mine owners, the opposition's sales spurt. Whenever he issues a no-work-week order another consignment of perfectly good coal furnaces goes to the junk yard.

Since Lewis started cutting didoes in the coal business in a large way a couple of years ago, most of the manufacturers of coal stokers started also to build oil burners. Today the official figures indicate that they are selling twice as many furnaces for oil as they do for coal.

One of the few householders in these parts who still heats his house with coal is Old Eyebrows, himself. My spies down Alexandria, Va., way report that his own coal bin isn't as full as it might be. This is bad. What I've got for sale, and I'd hoped he might be interested, is one perfectly good coal furnace. Mahogany color and big enough to heat a five-room house.

This used to be in my hired man's place. Last Winter sometimes he could get coal for it and sometimes he couldn't. Then he tried to feed it firewood. This didn't work so well. And also he spent a good deal of time chopping down trees when he should have been plowing up the potatoes I intended to sell to the Government.

I figured I'd get the coal in early this Fall. All the coal merchants, however, stopped advertising their wares. Turned out, I discovered via telephone, that they had nothing much to sell. What to do? They suggested, poor hopeful devils, that I wait until Eyebrows called off the strike.

Until the nights got nippy I waited. The hired man complained that he was tired of going to bed at sundown in order to keep warm. I hope Eyebrows will understand. I tried to be loyal. I hauled out that perfectly good coal furnace and replaced it with a new job that burns oil.

The statisticians figure that it'll cost $144 for oil to do the same job that coal would have done during the Winter for $126. My loss on the furnace that has nothing to burn is in addition. There's nothing wrong with it. Except that it seems to be an antique like a lamp that'll burn nothing but whale fat.

Nobody wants it. Nobody'll haul it away. It's cluttering up my toolshed and there's no room for the lawnmower. This is Eyebrows' fault. The least he can do is take time off from the speechifying at that fancy hotel in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., and make me an offer for my furnace.

This may sound like I'm spoofing. But what's worrying me (if not John L.) is the future of the coal business. When everybody's fed up with empty coal bins and converted to oil—and that's the way it looks like we're going now—there won't be much need of a coal strike. Or of a United Mine Workers Union. Or even of a John L. Lewis.

It may be that the old boy is thinking about this, himself. He's called off the strike in some of the hard coal mines, but he can't persuade me. I've rushed up too often to his headquarters, where the chandeliers sport golden picks and shovels, to hear him change his mind. I'm sticking to oil.

The fellow who's delivering this shouldn't thank me. All credit goes to salesman John. The oil-heating industry owes him a fat commission. Even if he does go back to mining coal.

WESTBROOK PEGLER

A Scrappy Woman Beat a Big Union

NEW YORK—Alone and without a lawyer, a small, middle-aged steamstress, whose earnings average not more than $25 a week, has licked one of the strongest autocratic left-wing Socialist unions in the entire union front. Mrs. Helen Kulesha, of the Bronx, went into the Small Claims Court in Manhattan and made the Ladies' Garment Workers Union give up her vacation fund of $44 which she had earned by her work. The union refused to deliver it to her because she refused to give up a day's pay to certain politico-charitable projects of the union bosses.

The political bosses of the union are David Dubinsky, President of the Garment Workers and Luigi Antonini, the First Vice President. Dubinsky and Antonini use their union powers to compel the workers to give money to foreign countries with the result that they ingratiate themselves with New York minority groups. With others they operate the Liberal Party, which is a political parasite and balance of power with a voting strength of from 300,000 to 400,000 in the city and State. The Liberal Party is a political subsidiary of the union. The total effect of the gifts, contrived by Dubinsky and Antonini, while doubtless helpful to distressed persons, is a political profit to these bosses.

Mrs. Kulesha, a native of Poland, was willing to give $3 but was assessed $7, an arbitrary figure for toilers in her classification, although that was more than her average day's earnings.

"I said, 'That is too much,'" Mrs. Kulesha explained. "I said, 'When I give charity I give from the heart.'"

Last July 7, Mrs. Kulesha was deceived by the ballyhoo for an Indianapolis union lawyer, Andrew Jacobs, serving a term in Congress, who got himself appointed chairman of a subcommittee to investigate the "lack of Democracy" in unions. Jacobs had collected a fee of $80,000 in a single union case before he went to Congress. His bleeding heart went out to a Baltimore local of the Carpenters' Union which was having trouble with the parent union, which has an enormous treasury. He drew a bead on this treasury and hit the jackpot. It is a profitable new law specialty.

During the Summer Jacobs used the power of subpoena in an effort to learn details of other grievances against rich organizations most of which, of course, are sitting ducks for any smart lawyer with a client. In fact, in the Kulesha case, no lawyer was needed. Instead we had the astonishing spectacle of a lone, scrappy little woman, speaking broken English, dragging a multi-million-dollar union in the Small Claims Court where she licked Emil Schlesinger, a noted union lawyer, and made him quit cold.

She had no help from anyone. Jacobs wasn't interested. She got her own summons and the case was so bad for the union that on Sept. 15 Schlesinger sent her a registered letter requesting her to come to his office to discuss a settlement "under which you will be paid in full and avoid the necessity of both of us wasting our valuable time in court."

Time really is money to Mrs. Kulesha, for she gets no pay when she doesn't work. On the other hand, Mr. Schlesinger's time wouldn't be wasted on union business, but he was up against a plaintiff who had him dead to rights.

Instead she went to court. She states that while they were waiting to be called, he offered her a check for $38 and that she refused, demanding $44. She says he then offered to pay the other $6 out of his pocket and that she indignantly insisted that the union pay it all officially with no informal out-of-pocket contributions from the lawyer. The case was called a few minutes later. Mr. Schlesinger then conceded defeat and Magistrate Leopold Prince ordered him to pay the clerk and called for the next case.

Judge Prince said Mr. Schlesinger said, "Your Honor, we concede the amount due."

"When that is said, I am no longer privileged to go into details," Judge Prince continued. "They (the union) tried to evade an adjudication based on the facts. Every new case of its type will have to be adjudicated separately. The union did not choose to defend its position."

The Kulesha case may not technically be held to be a precedent in view of Mr. Schlesinger's alert decision not to make a contest. Still it would seem that a trial would establish a precedent fatal to this kind of political squeeze in the guise of pure charity.

Mr. Schlesinger on the telephone said he did not make statements affecting his clients to persons unknown by phone. He refused to call me back to be sure. When I asked whether he required that I come to his office he said, "I don't know; that's up to you." He finally suggested that I write him a letter, but he seemed disposed to quibble whereas Judge Prince had been perfectly willing to discuss the case by phone. So I decided that I had gone as far as a conscientious reporter must to elicit a statement of Mr. Schlesinger's client's position.

Although Congressman Jacobs professed to desire names of oppressed victims of the union political monster, he gave Mrs. Kulesha a brush-off when she came forward at the subcommittee hearing. Her case involved only a few dollars.

"There is nothing this committee can do about your vacation money," he said. "I do not believe you are in a position to give us the type of information we would like to have."

VANISHING NIGHT CREAM

Glamour Without Grease Property of New Product

By MAYNITA GERRY
Constitution Fashion Editor

You don't have to shake it out, run it under the hot water faucet or pound it against the wall.

All you do is unscrew the cap and "glamour" simply flows into your hands.

Jacqueline Cochran calls her newest beauty product Flowing Velvet for two obvious reasons: Because of its propensity for flowing smoothly and evenly out of the bottle and because of the velvety texture it imparts to your face.

"If you are interested in glamour without grease at bedtime and a natural moist look that stays with you all day," said Mrs. Jeannette Kraft, sales representative for the Southern and Southwestern territory, "this is it."

It is, according to Mrs. Kraft, a special type of Hydrophilic night cream that should be worn all day—and night. Not sticky, or greasy, it vanishes into the skin and quietly continues its good work out of sight. During the day, it goes under your powder base and is reapplied after you clean your face at bedtime.

In Atlanta to speak at Franklin Simon's fashion show on Wednesday at 12:30 in their tearoom, Mrs. Kraft forecasts a bright year for cosmetics in 1950.

Who sets the fashion pace for cosmetics?

"The millinery designers, of course," said Mrs. Kraft. "When hats are small and hug the hairline, makeup must be bright in order to bring out facial expressions."

Green and blue mascara will replace black and brown, she pointed out, and two shades of eyeshadow are much better than one for both daytime and evening use . . . applied one on top of the other.

Rouge will be worn high on the cheekbones. A rule that Mrs. Kraft uses for applying rouge is almost a limmerick and easy to remember: High into the eyeline—never below the smile-line, which is the nose line. Completely back to the ear and hairline, toning it in around the edge to where it is highlighted in the center.

"Rouge," she offered further, "is used for one purpose only—to bring out the eye coloring."

Lipsticks will be a clear red with a slight touch of brown which is the most natural tone for lips. And outlines will be clear and natural, not overshot as before.

"Your skin changes with the season," Mrs. Kraft pointed out, "and your cosmetics should change also. For Summer, you should wear darker makeup for contrast with pastel colors, and in Winter you should use lighter makeup against dark clothes.

"But your lipstick and rouge," she brought out forcefully, "should always harmonize with your costume."

Your Stars Today

WHAT TO EXPECT TODAY—SUN IN LIBRA

General Tendencies — People on the West Coast have a better time of it today than the other side of the country, as they will not feel the poor influences of the moon and Saturn until after breakfast, while the East will notice them just as they start work—due to difference in time between the two sections of the country. It might be well to wait for afternoon to push your heart's desire, otherwise you are apt to be delayed and disappointed. This is not a really favorable day, although January people will not mind it too much.

If It's Your Birthday—Possibly you ought to watch health in your immediate vicinity all the coming 12 months—not only for yourself but for close relatives and friends. The very important things will not be too badly affected, but minor difficulties may arise. This warning is not to create worry in your mind but rather to prevent you from overestimating the events and their effect upon you. After next Summer you will be able to proceed quite smoothly, in spite of the fact that surprises and unexpected twists will happen within the next three years.

LET'S SEE NOW

Dissenting Voice Should Be Heard

By DORIS LOCKERMAN
Constitution Associate Editor

It is open season on resolutions.

From now on through the fading of the last jonquil next Spring, minutes of meetings everywhere will be punctuated with circumspect whereins and whereby's and do earnestly urges, all unanimously passed to whom they may concern.

These will serve three purposes. They will quiet the tiny voice of conscience in the hearts of the voters of resounding ayes; they will give the newspapers an angle, and they always look stately in a scrapbook.

Nobody knows how effective they are in giving direction to those in public office with their ears to the ground for the rumble of public opinion from the folks back home.

Their questionable value arises from their questionable use.

The resolution was originally conceived as an instrument of opinion from a group concerning issues of importance to them, and was undoubtedly weapon of formidable power at one time.

Now, too often, the resolution follows a one-sided persuasion of proponents or opponents of an issue, with no consideration whatever of the fact that there must be two points of view.

There was a recent example of this trend in our community.

A public issue of some heat was discussed eloquently and with fine logic from the opposing side only, and when the two opponents had spoken their words, an officer of the club being addressed hurried forward with a prewritten resolution and submitted it for consideration and immediate vote.

The question was the National Health Insurance Program and the resolution opposing it passed without a dissenting vote.

When the meeting ended there was obvious indignation in the ranks about the encroachment of leftist thinking and statism, and one dignified lady remarked with pride that her patriotic group and two other organizations of her membership had previously gone on firm record against the "socialization" of medicine.

I am in favor of "free enterprise" medicine, and I think the medical groups are to be congratulated for their admission that everything has not been rosy in that field for many families, and praised for their forthright attempts to provide voluntary nonprofit health and medical insurance plans to take care of family emergencies. I think those plans, if people will be self-provident enough to accept them, coupled with more clinics and hospitality building programs, will meet the need. I hope so, because I, too, shudder at the thought of a bureaucy of aspirin tablets.

But because the position of the doctors and the American Medical Association is so strong, they are the very ones who can afford to invite debate on the issue. And in all honesty, it does not reflect on the solidly "democratic" community of Atlanta that the health plan of their Democratic President is not given a hearing before its people.

Women's groups in the South are conservative along political lines and liberal along the lines of human rights. They can be trusted to follow the line of generosity toward individuals and caution toward economic and political change and that seems an admirable course.

My thought is that no organization should take action of the group type, though, until it has presented both sides of an issue, and then I doubt whether it is not "bloc" action which is viewed with alarm when it comes from minority factions.

Some thoughtful leaders believe that women's groups do best for their members if they inform them completely and impartially, through open debate or forum, and then urge them to individual action. That leaves them free for democratic choice and preserves their right of privacy of opinion.

Actually, programs are far more rousing when two sides of a controversy are thrashed out, anyway. I have in mind a conference of the League of Women Voters a year or so ago when economists were discussing the rising Federal budget and admitting it seemed impossible to stop it, or keep it from getting higher, with the welfare "mandates" enjoyed by President Truman.

A crusty local banker rose up and said it was that reasoning was claptrap and bosh and denounced the whole idea of gimme. He shocked the audience into attention and the affair ended on a fine note of provocative thought as well as good will.

And now that I think of it that conference made page one of the newspapers.

An Heirloom Recipe

By AGNES REASOR OLMSTEAD
Constitution Food Editor

Today's heirloom recipe is the result of a week's bargaining with a West Coast career woman.

About four years ago, we met at a small dinner party at Fisherman's Wharf Restaurant in San Francisco. The career friend was en route to her home in Seattle and I was scheduled to be in that city the following week. This coincidence brought forth an invitation to dinner from my friend but said she, "I would be frightened to death to cook for a home economist. Suppose we do this, let's have the soup course at my apartment, then go out to a Steak House. I know I can make soup!"

It turned out that she served a superb Cream of Green Onion Soup garnished with a mound of salted whipped cream and sprinkled with slivers of toasted almonds. A delight of soup connoisseurs if ever I tasted one! Naturally, I wanted the recipe but her answer was a flat, "I'm sorry, no."

Finally after seven days of cajoling, calling and coaxing, my friend Emma gave me the recipe as I stepped on the train for home.

CREAM OF GREEN ONION SOUP

1½ cups thinly sliced green onions
¼ cup butter
¼ cup flour
2 teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
3 cups milk
1 chicken boullion cube
⅓ cup cream
Grated cheese

Wash and thinly slice young green onions, including the tops. Simmer very slowly in butter for 15 minutes, but do not let brown. Stir in flour and seasonings. Remove from heat and slowly stir in milk and boullion cube. Return to low heat and cook until thick and smooth, stirring constantly. Just before serving add the cream and allow to heat. Sprinkle each serving with a generous amount of grated sharp cheddar cheese. Makes six servings.

Cream of Green Onion Soup is a perfect first course for any dinner.

CHARLES H. GOREN ON CANASTA

Game Features Deep-Freeze Art

SIXTH IN A SERIES

One of the features which distinguishes Canasta from all other rummy games is the unique practice of freezing the discard pile. Freezing the pack has the effect of vetoing the power of the wild cards, so far as taking the discard pile is concerned.

When the pack is not frozen, it may be taken by a player who holds a card which matches the last discard, plus a deuce (to compose a three-card meld.) But when the pack is frozen, the deuce and joker may not during the freeze be used for such purpose. In order to go in, a player must have a natural pair to match the last discard. When the pack is not frozen a player may "go in" if the last discard is a card which matches one of his own melds such a card is frequently called a "player." But during the freeze, he may not go in for such "player" unless he has a natural pair to match it. A freeze is created during the subsequent play when any one discards a deuce or a joker. Such action is taken for the purpose of making it more difficult for the opposition to take up the pile. It is particularly indicated when you hold cards which you know that the enemy can use (cards matching their melds) and your purpose is to restrict their sphere of action.

When you and your partner have a great many more cards than the opposing team, and each side has already made the initial meld, so that the pile is not frozen, you are in a strategic position to apply the freeze. It will be a considerably greater nuisance to them than to you. Because their hands have been depleted, it is reasonable to assume that they will find it difficult to put together pairs, so that their chances of going in will be negligible. Whereas you will find it much easier to accumulate a number of pairs and sooner or later the enemy will be obliged to part with a card to match one of them and the loot will be yours.

Observe an illustrative case: You have not yet made your initial meld but the opponents have melded Queens, Jacks, Tens and Sixes. After drawing you hold:

2-Q-Q-J-J-10-10-10-8-8-8-4

The discard pile has reached desirable proportions and you are anxious to avoid giving it to them. You may not, therefore, discard a Q - J - or 10 your choice apparently narrows down to an 8 or the 4. You could get by, let us say, conveniently enough by letting go the 4. But you will be faced with an awkward situation next time. To part with the 8's would be to abandon your one hope to ultimately come through with a Canasta. The best play is the deuce, freezing the pile. This is sound strategy. It restricts the opposition without imposing an additional burden on you. For as far as you are concerned the paek is frozen anyway, since you have not made your first meld. If your right hand opponent throws a card to match one of your pairs, you will obtain the pile. But what is more to the point, discarding will not now be a painful procedure.

STRATEGY OF GOING IN

When the discard pile is not frozen opportunities to piek it up with the aid of a deuce or joker are numerous. One does not, however, go in, willy-nilly in such cases. It does not pay to use up your only wild card, for a discard pile of no great value. However, when you are faced with possible embarrassment in discarding, it may be wise to go in for the discard pile merely for the purpose of obtaining cards which you will be able to discard with impunity. The pile, may for example, contain some black three's which will keep you from being squeezed out of your money cards.

DECEPTION

The less information you give your righthand opponent about your hand the better. If you can give him some misinformation by all means do so. If you can give him the erroneous impression that you don't want 7's, it may work to your advantage. You may do this effectively by discarding two of them if you happen to have four retaining a pair for the "big grab."

The same type of deception may be practiced when holding five of a kind, by melding only three of them and holding up a pair for later reference.

Similarly when partner has made his initial meld, it is not always good practice to add your cards to his melds, especially if you have a pair of them. When playing against opponents who are apt to freeze the pack, these pairs may come in handy. In the finch, your righthand opponent may throw one of these cards, in the belief that it is safe.

But when your side has a meld containing only three natural cards, you should hasten to add a fourth natural, which will be a base for a future Canasta. Remember every Canasta must contain at least four natural cards.

SALLY FORTH Says:

Orchids To Be Flown Here For Smith-Thran Wedding

Guests who have been invited to the reception this evening following the marriage of Miss Mildred Ward Smith and Udo Oscar Thran will find themselves in a bower of floral loveliness the minute they enter the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Leslie Smith, on Harvard Road, where the affair will take place.

For the reception rooms will be graced with myriads of delicately tinted orchids, flown here from Miami, Fla., by Mrs. C. S. Love.

Mrs. Love, who is a former Atlantan, is Mrs. Smith's most devoted friend, and is executive secretary of a tropical garden, in Miami, which her niece owns. Knowing what an avid flower enthusiast Mrs. Smith is—incidentally, she is an accredited judge of flower shows—and wishing to have a part in Mildred's happiness, she asked the privilege of supplying the flowers for the reception. Mrs. Smith can hardly wait to try her hand at arranging the exotic blossoms.

Another interesting note about Mildred's marriage is that with her ivory satin dress, trimmed with Brussels lace, she will wear the handsome Brussels lace veil which Mrs. Walter Paschal brought from Europe some years ago.

Atlantans To Be Feted in Birmingham

Mrs. George Connors and her son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George Connors, Jr., of Birmingham, have issued novel invitations to a number of their friends, a group of Atlantans among them, to a buffet supper which they plan to give this evening at the Connors home.

Mrs. Connors recently had her handsome home at 2345 Crest Rd. redecorated and now that the ordeal is over, she and her son and daughter have decided to celebrate.

Accordingly, she invited another son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Grant, of Atlanta, for a visit and as an inspiration for the affair. The Grants departed Sunday.

Engraved on the bottom of the invitations is a bar of music from "Home, Sweet Home," with the address of the Connors home immediately beneath.

Mrs. T. T. Stevens Visits Here

An important visitor in the city this week is Mrs. T. T. Stevens, of Miami, who is the guest of Mrs. B. M. Boykin at her home on Spring Street. Mrs. Stevens is here primarily to attend the meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Tallulah Falls School.

A former Atlantan and a past President of the City Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Stevens is one of Miami's outstanding club leaders. She is Chairman of the Miami City Planning Committee and the only woman member. She organized the Bookfellows Club, of Miami, which she has served as President for nine years. In addition, she is a past President of the Miami Woman's Club.

A number of delightful informal parties is being planned for Mrs. Stevens by a host of Atlanta friends.

Yanks and Bums Should Be Thankful

Well, the Yankees and the Dodgers have backed into the World's Series and, somehow, I find myself unable to get very much disturbed about it all.

I'm not one of those fellows who believe teams and players of yesterday were invariably better than those of today. But I do believe the Yanks and Dodgers should consider themselves extremely fortunate they are playing each other instead of some of the clubs which have appeared in World's Series.

In other words, I don't think either of them would belong on the same field with, say, the Cardinals in the days of the Deans, Martins and Hallahans . . . or the Yankees with their Ruths, Gehrigs and Lazzeries . . . or the A's with fellows like Boley and Bishop and Grove and Earnshaw.

From here, Brooklyn and New York didn't win the pennants. St. Louis and Boston simply lost them. All four clubs tried time and again to give the flags away and, by gallant persistence, the Cards and Red Sox finally succeeded.

Class Lacking Of course, you have to have considerable admiration for the Yanks because of their run of injuries which sidelined DiMaggio and Henrich, a pair of legitimate major leaguers.

But this only tends to emphasize the lack of class among the pennant contenders. The Red Sox with five .300 hitters in their lineup and two 20-game winners on their pitching staff still could not handle New York's cripples.

Of the four teams, the Dodgers perhaps did more to win their prize, but only after St. Louis collapsed completely in the fading moments of the season.

Both winners won and lost an identical number of games, 97 and 57, which may be an indication of an evenly-matched World's Series.

Let's look at some of the other angles.

Two Pitchers The Yanks have two major league pitchers in Raschi and Reynolds and a spare left arm for both of them in the person of Joe Page. But Smokey Joe has been showing signs of the strain of nearly 60 appearances this season and, in the past week, Reynolds has had to reverse the usual procedure and save a game for him.

The Dodgers have one major league pitcher in Newcombe, a cagy pro in Roe and a bunch of other joes name Guy.

Judging from the pitching staffs alone, it would appear the Yankees have the best of it, an idea undoubtedly shared by the odds-makers who have established New York as 9-5 favorite.

If, as they say, pitching is 75 percent of a short series, the Yanks perhaps have the best of it. There is little to choose between the rest of the lineups.

The Bums appear to be a little better in the infield, with the Yanks having a similar edge in the outfield, provided DiMaggio is ready.

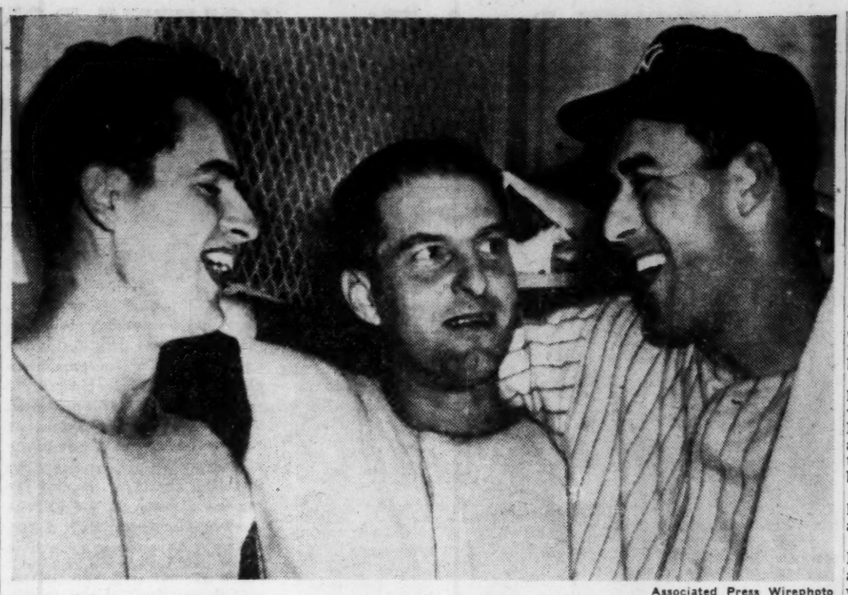

Real Thrillers This will be the third meeting of the two teams in a World's Series. The two previous series have produced real thrills.

In 1941, Mickey Owen dropped his famous third strike and Hugh Casey and the Dodgers were beaten. Then in 1947, Old Cookie Lavagetto hit his dramatic double in the ninth after Floyd Bevan had hurled no-hit ball for eight and two-thirds innings.

But the Yanks went on to win that one in seven games. Casey was the real star in defeat. Ol' Hugh is on the other side this time but didn't join the Yanks in time to be eligible for the Series.

I watched the first two games of that '47 series, the Yanks winning them both. I became absolutely convinced even the Crackers could beat the Bums, and packed up and came home, missing out on all the thrills which followed.

All of which goes to show, you can't tell what will happen in baseball.

BIG GUNS OF YANKS—This trio of Yankees were chiefly responsible for beating the Red Sox in Sunday's deciding game of the American League pennant race. Left to right: Gerry Coleman, whose double scored three runs; Tommy Henrich, who clouted a homer, and Vic Raschi, who held the Sox to five hits.

CONVERTED CENTER STARS AT END FOR BULLDOGS

Gene Chandler's Defensive Play Is Highlight of Early Season

By BILL STRUDEL
Constitution Sports Correspondent

ATHENS—A rangy, good-looking young blond, who made his first big splash against the North Carolina Tarheels in 1947 as an outstanding defensive center, seems to have come into his own in this year's Tarheel-Bulldog clash as an outstanding defensive end.

Gene Chandler, 190-pound, 6-1 senior, is playing his second year at end for the Bulldogs. Only once last Fall did Gene really show at his best, and that was at LSU, where he and Joe Connally, now line coach at Decatur High, put on a great show of defensive flank play.

This Fall, so far, however, Gene has been a bulwark at end, and few if any yards have been gained by the Bulldogs' first three opponents around his end.

An All-Southern, All-State and All-GIAA center at Tech High, Chandler was voted the best prep player in Atlanta in 1943. He played at center as a frosh at Georgia, and first gained national prominence by being in on the much disputed "forward-lateral" play in the Sugar Bowl against the North Carolinians.

Chandler has always claimed that the ball thrown by Joe Tereshinski was intended for him, hit his hand and was deflected to Dick McPhee, giving it the appearance of a forward.

Anyhow, Gene earned his first letter that year, and repeated as a center the next Fall, having much to do with stopping the great "Choo Choo" cold in the return engagement in which the Bulldogs were licked, 14-7.

Coach Butts was playing a team defense that day, so set that the center would plug up a hole left by charging linemen. Chandler met Justice and Pupa in the middle of this hole so often they must have thought they were magnetized and drawing the "iron man" to them.

Incidentally, Gene doesn't think Justice is the best back he has faced, although he admits that the Choo Choo is a fine runner and has given him plenty of trouble in their encounters. His choice for the toughest guy he's been up against is Don (Dopey) Phelps, who he will try to hem in next Saturday night when the Bulldogs meet Kentucky's dark-horse title contenders in Lexington.

In the Spring of 1948, coaches, casting about for a natural athlete to convert to defensive end, cast their eye on Chandler, who is as fast as a back, and a fine tackler. One season at the new spot must have been just what Gene needed, and he is showing that whoever suggested moving him was a good judge of possible talent.

Married, and the father of a one-year-old daughter, Gene has spent the lost two Summers in Athens, working in a filling station next to the apartments where he lives, but intends to try the coaching game upon graduation next Spring.

SHORT NOTES: The Bulldogs emerged from their tough loss to Carolina without a major injury and with a minimum of minor ones. Eli Maricich was receiving treatment for a bruised knee, John Tillitski had facial cuts, and Bill Bradshaw is nursing a split lip. Nothing else worse than the usual bruises and sore spots was reported by Trainer "Sammy Boy" Richwine.

Floyd Reid was running yesterday. Not full speed, and not without some pain, but, at least, running.

Tommy Pope hurt his ribs in the scrimmage, which saw very few of the men who played Saturday performing for more than a couple of plays. Zippy Morocco and Jack McHugh were the running standouts, McHugh going for a 50-yard TD spin, and 30 other assorted yards. Mal Cook did all the passing, completing five of seven for 52 yards.

Georgia Is 'Bigger, Stronger'---Bryant

LEXINGTON, Ky.—(AP)—Kentucky's football team jogged through a light limbering up drill in weat clothes yesterday before settling down to serious preparatins ofor its Southeastern Conference football tussle with Georgia here Saturday night.

Except for sophomore Halfback Cliff Lawson the Wildcats came ou. of the 47-0 route of Mississippi with only the expected bumps and bruises. Lawson had some ribs damaged.

Coach Paul Bryant figures the Georgia team "bigger and stronger than we are." Georgia won last year's game, 35-12.

The Wildcat mentor passed the word that this week's session would stress offensive improvement,. particularly better offensive blocking.

Mel Allen, Red Barber To Announce Series

NEW YORK—(UP)—Mel Allen and Red Barber have been named by the Mutual Broadcasting System to handle its play by play account of the World Series, the network announced yesterday.

Jim Britt, Boston announcer, will handle the commentary over a television network which will link the East and Midwest for the first time in World Series history.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Choo Choo, Doak Head For Laurels

Condensed From AP, UP, INS Wire Reports

SMU's Doak Walker and North Carolina's Charlie Justice look like possible three-time All-Americans. Both gave sensational performances again last week against Missouri and Georgia, respectively.

Dazzling Doak and the Carolina "Choo Choo" have made the All-American squad for the past two years and went a long way towards their third selection yesterday when they were both named on the United Press Backfield of the Week.

Walker scored three times against Missouri and booted four extra points to assure the Mustangs of a 28-27 victory. Justice scored a touchdown and passed for another to lead the Tarheels to a 21-14 victory over Georgia.

BASEBALL—The Pittsburgh Pirates began a major remodeling job for next year yesterday when the sixth-place club unconditionally released Pitcher Rip Sewell and Outfielder Dixie Walker. . . . More than 2,000 loyal rooters turned out to greet the beaten Red Sox at Boston. And it looked like a victory celebration. Placards read "We Still Love You" and "You're the Best!" Even a jazz band was on hand.

The 1949 Subway World Series will be an old story and yet a new one for Georgia-born Hugh Casey. The colorful relief hurler pitched for Brooklyn against New York in both 1941 and 1947. This time Casey will be on the other side of the fence for he finished the recent season for the Yankees.

SEC FOOTBALL — Vanderbilt held a long drill yesterday on pass defense and tackling, two weaknesses which Coach Bill Edwards spotted in the Commodores' victory over Alabama. Edwards said End Bud Curtiss was definitely out of this week's game with Mississippi with a sprained ankle. Center Tommy Patterson probably won't play either because of an injured wrist. . . . Mississippi Coach Johnny Vaught yesterday told his Rebels to forget the Kentucky disaster and point to Saturday's game with Vandy. The Rebs had a lot of hustle in a long afternoon of work yesterday.

Kentucky Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant consigned the Wildcats' 47-0 walloping of Mississippi to the records yesterday and started getting ready for the Georgia Bulldogs. . . . Kentucky Tackle Bob Gain, who played a fine game against the Rebels, worked out on the sidelines trying to get his tender knee back in shape.

LSU's Tigers growled happily through a light workout yesterday with just some running, passing and signal drilling to keep hands down to size after last Saturday's upset of Rice. However, Tiger Ray Potter suffered a possible fractured cartilage in the Owl game and is expected to be out for the season.

Tulane Coach Henry Frnka said at the New Orleans Touchdown Club meeting yesterday, "Georgia Tech is one of the fine football teams. I'm glad we don't have to worry any more about them this season." What Frnka was worried about, he wouldn't tal kabout—the game with unbeaten Notre Dame Oct. 15, at South Bend.

Fullback Red Noonan, hurt in Saturday's tussle with Vanderbilt, was the only serious week-end casualty for the Alabama team. The Tide offensive threat will be lost for at least a week . . . The accent was on pass defense tactics at Auburn yesterday as the Tigers ran through a lengthy scrimmage. Tiger coaches are looking forward to Saturday's game with Florida. . . . Florida Coach Ray Bear) Wolf is working on offensive blocking, pass defense and pass offense in an effort to ready his Gators for Saturday's game with Auburn.

MISCELLANEOUS — Calumet Farm's Coaltown tops a field of 14 nominations for the $50,000-added Jockey Club Gold Cup Saturday at Belmont Park. Calumet will send Ponder, the Kentucky Derby winner, along with Coaltown.

Leahy Feud With Officials Continues

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—(AP)—Disclosure the game officials had a pre-game movie brush-up on Notre Dame tactics yesterday rekindled Irish resentment against officiating of their 27-7, penalty-punctuated triumph over Washington's Huskies at Seattle Saturday.

W. H. Frazer, of Spokane, Wash., headlinesman at the game, revealed at Spokane that movies of last year's Irish-Washington game at South Bend had been viewed by the four officials "not too long" before Saturday's game.

Irish Coach Frank Leahy came home from the tilt fighting mad at the whistle blowers.

Frazer said Washington Coach Howie O'Dell was at the showing and "the purpose was to point out what they (Washington) thought about holding by Notre Dame players."

The point at issue, the officials said, was not whether Notre Dame players grasped their opponents, but whether their blocking methods constituted holding.

Concerning the movie-viewing, Frazer said "I personally don't think it was a good idea and I have written a letter to Victor O. Schmidt, Pacific Coast Conference Commissioner."

At Los Angeles, Schmidt said: "I haven't received any letter from Frazer, and until I do, I'm not in a position to continue or start a controversy in the matter."

From Seattle came this explanation by Harvey Cassill, University of Washington athletic director:

"Official who worked the Washington-Notre Dame game were shown movies of last year's game between the two schools. It is customary for officials to check with coaches to determine any particular phase or aspect of a game about to be played.

"These instructions include not only comments on their own type of play, but likewise point up any attitude they have acquired from previous games or experience toward their opponent's type of play. It is not infrequent that diagrams are used to illustrate the particular types of play. In this instance, movies were used for further classification."

And this was Irish Coach Leahy's reaction:

"I believe the entire procedure tended to send the officials into Saturday's game with a supercritical attitude. It was quite irregular; I don't know of this ever being done before.

"It would have to be that which caused the fouls to be called against us in that manner.

"If it (the movie showing) was intended to be an instructional clinic, a representative of Notre Dame should have been invited."

Leahy, just after the game in which Notre Dame was penalized 135 yards on 10 major infractions, commented bitterly that the Irish had to play "four extra men." Besides Frazer, the officials were Referee Thomas D. Wilson, Umpire William Corbus and Field Judge Elwood Starbuck.

Washington was penalized four times for 20 yards, including two five-yard losses for offside and two five-yard setbacks for delay before scrimmage.

Leahy said he reviewed Saturday's game movies and found that Notre Dame "played the same as always, exactly according to the rule book."

The Irish mentor stressed that the first outburst yet against officiating was prompted by his desire to defend his players from the insinuation through the officiating that Notre Dame "plays dirty."

"We did not play dirty, we never have, and we never will," said Leahy. "I really have no ill feeling at all towards Coach O'Dell. He did a fine coaching job and his team played well."

Leahy said his blast at the officials did not indicate the Irish would no longer schedule Washington. "I have only said that those officials will not officiate another Notre Dame game," Leahy declared. "I have not said that we will not play Washington again."

Saturday's game ended a two-year, home-and-home series between Washington and Notre Dame.

Lopat, Roe Hurl First Series Tilt

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK—(AP)—Two spent but triumphant baseball teams caught their collective breaths yesterday after perhaps the most exhausting finish in the history of the major leagues, and braced themselves for a Homeric playoff starting tomorrow in the House that Ruth Built.

The Brooklyn Dodgers, still panting from the extra-inning thriller over the tough Philadelphia Phillies which enabled them to hit the tape a length ahead of the St. Louis Cardinals on the final day of the season, simply relaxed and mentally computed the size of their World Series checks.

Casey Stengel's almost fabulous Yankees, who rose to dramatic heights in smashing back the final challenge of the Boston Red Sox in two stirring games at the stadium, only suited up long enough to pose for the customary portrait as American League champions and indulge in a light practice.

Today the Brooks plan to visit their rival's huge arena and line their sights on its right and left field barriers in a lengthy batting drill.

The National League champs recall with lingering asperity that they were granted no workout in the stadium before the '47 subway series, which they lost to the Yanks in a tingling seven-game set.

There was no rush to buy tickets to the play-off for the good reason that every box and reserved chair both at the stadium and Ebbets Field—whence the series will transfer for three games starting Friday—were bought and paid for during the final delirious stages of the pennant races.

Only a few sturdy and determined fans approached the Stadium box office during the day to purchase standing room tickets at $4 per copy. In all, close to 30,000 standing room and bleacher seats will be available for games at the stadium, a Yankee official said.

Only yesterday, when they finally awakened to the realization that the Brooks and the Yanks had, indeed, fought their way into a community World Series for the third time in nine years, did local fans begin debating the momentous question of which will win.

There is no doubt that the Yankees will be favorites; it's all a matter of degree. Possibly Stengel's gritty athletes will be a solid 2-to-1 choice by the time they square off at 1 p. m. (EST) on tomorrow, especially if Joe DiMaggio shows no ill effects from his exertions over the weekend and derives real benefit from the two-day rest.

The great jolter, heart and soul of the Yanks, took himself out of the line-up in the last inning of Sunday's victory over the Red Sox because he was too weak to run as he thought he should. He has been up less than a week from a protracted bout with a virus infection.

Tomorrow's opener shapes up as a duel between two crafty left-handers of the older school—Elwin (Preacher) Roe for the Dodgers and Ed Lopat for the Yankees. Both are 15-game winners, and both specialize in the sneaky, control pitching which baffles a batter rather than blows him down.

It was considered a possibility that Manager Burt Shotton would pass over Roe in favor of his big Negro rookie, Don Newcombe, who racked up 17 wins after reporting to the Dodgers in May. But Newcombe was shelled out by the Phils in Sunday's game at Shibe Park when he failed to keep his hard one low enough, and, besides, it behooves Shotton to employ the veteran Roe at the outset if he expects to get two games out of him. Preacher requires a good rest between starts.

Looming before the Dodgers from the start will be the shadow of their old nemesis, Joe Page, the great relief pitcher who spelled their doom in the '47 play-offs and who carried the Yank mound staff on his broad shoulders through much of the campaign just closed.

At any time during the series, just when they are beginning to spray a few base hits and feel their oats, the Shottonmen may expect to look up and observe the big lefty strolling in from the bull pen with a grin on his lips and a wicked gleam in his eyes.

Page has to be accounted the "difference" between the rival hill corps. The Yankee staff is not a really fine one by most standards, but it gains stature by the fact that whenever Lopat, Allie Reynolds or Tommy Byrne falters he will be succeeded by the greatest reliefer in the game today.

The Dodgers lack such a fireman since their old stand-by, Hugh Casey, left them last year. He joined the Yanks recently but isn't eligible for the series.

There's little else to choose between the two clubs, except that the Yankees, with DiMaggio, Tommy Henrich and Yogi Berra swinging from the hips, boast greater potential power. The Dodgers wound up with a team batting average of .270, the Yankees .269.

JACKETS IN GOOD SHAPE AFTER WAVE SCRAP

Dodd To Scrimmage Reserves This Week for W. and L. Fray

By GEORGE TISINGER

It was anything but a downhearted group of Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets who romped through a playful afternoon yesterday on Rose Bowl Field as they eased into preparations for their game here Saturday with the Washington and Lee eleven.

The Engineers, who came through the tough Tulane scrap in New Orleans last Saturday in top physical condition, looked briefly at some defensive stuff and then divided up for some touch football which while being fun for the working men also serves to keep the legs and wind in shape.

Late in the day the punters and kickoff men went off into a corner for some work of their own and the rest came over to watch Coach Lewis Woodruff's freshmen wind up a long, grinding scrimmage among themselves.

Jacket coaches were rather satisfied with the reserve-weak Jacket's performance against the bigger, taller and more numerous Green Wave. Holding the Greenies to a mere six points for three quarters was a feat worthy of satisfaction.

The injured Engineers are still not going to be much help to Tech in Saturday's game. Quarterback Joe Salome, who has been out of rought stuff for a week or two, is still not able to throw more than a weak lob for a distance of a few yards. He was held out of even the touch game when coaches saw him slip and fall, again endangering his bad right shoulder muscles.

Halfback Bill Queen, who has been out since the first week of practice with a broken collarbone, was back in sweat clothes with the rest for the first time since his injury. His work, however, consisted merely of jogging around the field with a ball under his arm as he started to re-familiarize himself with the game. He has put on about 10 pounds during his idleness but will have that pared off, trainers say, before the Florida game in Gainesville on Oct. 22.

Guard Ewell Pope, with a jaw fractured in the Vanderbilt game, also was out on the practice field for the first time since he was hurt. Ewell has his teeth wired together and was running easily back and forth. His job is to practice breathing through his teeth during the exertions on the football field, Pope is not going to play much before the Florida game either, if then. Forced to live on a liquid diet, he has lost several pounds of hi. 168 during his recovery.

Coach Bobby Dodd said that his Jackets would devote themselves a lot this week to scrimmaging. He said the second and third teams would come in for most of this rough work, though the regular starters would get a brief taste about Wednesday to keep their weapons sharpened.

Today's work will be mainly on the reserves as the regulars again take it fairly easy.

Crawford May Play Against Jackets

LEXINGTON, Va.—(AP) — The best news Washington and Lee's Generals received yesterday was that Senior End Jack Crawford, of Kingsport, Tenn., who received a serious eye injury in Saturday's game against West Virginia, may be able to play in the Georgia Tech contest Saturday.

Crawford had five stitches taken in the corner of his left eye Saturday night by a Charleston specialist. He will have the stitches demoved Wednesday, at which time a decision will be made on his playing this weekend.

Coach George Barclay gave his bruised squad a light workout. Work began on deefnses against Georgia Tech, and meathods were sought to give Quarterback Gil Bocetti more protection on passes.

MACOMB, Ill.—(AP) — Elwin (Al) Ketter, 40, Quincy (Ill.) dirt track automobile race driver died last night of injuries suffered Sunday when his racer crashed through a fence at the Macomb Speedway.

NATS RELEASE JOEY KUHEL AS MANAGER

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The cellar-dwelling Washington Senators yesterday released Manager Joe Kuhel.

"We just had to make a change," said Clark Griffith, Club President.

Griffith, who made the announcement, said no successor to Kuhel would be named for the time being.

The Senators wound up the 1949 baseball season in last place in the standings, 47 games behind the league-leading Yankees.

THE PREPARADE

You Pick 'Em, We'll Beat 'Em

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Those boys who wear bright green jerseys out at O'Keefe High all week and wear out some grid foe every Thursday night have made us look worse than an anaemic chicken caught in a rainstorm. In fact, we haven't looked worse since that siege of flu bedded us for six weeks 20 years ago.

We have missed picking the winners in high school grid games just 11 times in the first three weeks of the season. Exactly three of those errors in judgment have been because we keep insisting on underrating Hank Langston's Fighting Irish.

Three times we have picked them to lose. They warmed up by tying mighty Griffin (0-0), and then pasted Grady (12-0), Murphy (13-0), and us (3-0) right on the nose. We were upset worse than the mother of seven sick children when the house caught on fire, all because we wouldn't believe the Irish were that good.

At any rate we are glad to hear that our name is a "household word" in the O'Keefe dressing room. Hank Langston, who forced us to name him "Coach of the Week" for the Atlanta Touchdown Club after his third straight "upset," told the touchdowners at their weekly meeting yesterday that his charges have a slogan and cry with which they burst from their dressing quarters each week:

"Let Charlie Roberts pick 'em; then we'll beat 'em."

Let us hasten into print with our first prediction of the week: O'Keefe over Baker Village by three touchdowns.

No one has to twist our arm many times to make us see the light. We know when we're licked. We can take a hint after the third time it's given. Rah, rah, rah, O'Keefe. Yea, Fighting Irish.

Hank says if we were as wrong in picking him Coach of the Week as we were in picking his football team to lose that he is the "Worst Coach of the Week."

Reno and Scooter

One thing Brother Langston had to say in his sparkling speech made Scooter Yancey turn green with envy, as green as the jerseys the boys who play for the man with the crew cut wear when they are out there knocking heads.

Let us hasten to explain that Scooter Yancey is the Coach of Eastman High School down in South Georgia. He was up here with his 160-pound fullback, Reno Powell, who has scored 69 points in two games this year. (That fact, in turn, made Mr. Langston green with envy, which made them even, we suppose.)

Reno ran for five touchdowns in Eastman's 61-6 win over Wrightsville and for five more in the Wildcats' 78-0 rout of Tennille. That was quite a few touchdowns, enough to cause the fancy-running Powell to be honored as Georgia's "Player of the Week" in so far as the TD Club was concerned.

The Scooter, a very pleasant, short, dark and handsome fellow who once did his football playing for Mercer University in Macon, really opened his eyes wide and turned that green we were talking about when Langston explained that he had 135 players out for football and only 135 uniforms, and that when a player didn't show up for practice another husky lad in the waiting line got the uniform, and the fellow who skipped practice was automatically off the squad.

Only 160 Students

Eastman High has about 160 students, including girls, so Yancey doesn't understand about things like having 135 kids out for football practice. In fact, when he started at Eastman last year, just six boys turned out for the first practice. He had to beg enough more lads to come out so he could field a team, and win six of nine games. Right now, he is happy when he gets a full 22 out at the Class C school so he can scrimmage.

Yancey is one of the few coaches we know who is using the split T formation that Bud Wilkinson's Oklahoma team made famous by beating North Carolina in the Sugar Bowl last year. Scooter says the blocking assignments are simpler to teach the many youngsters he gets who never played football before.

The fellows in the little schools have a lot of problems the Class AA, A and B folks don't have. You know, though, we just didn't have the heart to tell Langston about those six players at Eastman who can run the 100-yard dash in less than 11 seconds. (Reno Powell does it in about 10.1.)

It might have added a few gray hairs to the Langston coiffure. Coaches in big schools have problems, too, and hardly ever that many "10-second men."

MARICICH'S RUN SET NEW MARK

ATHENS, Ga. — (AP) — Eli Maricich's 88-yard run against North Carolina Saturday established a record for a Georgia player scoring on a punt return since the SEC was organized in 1933.

It surpassed by two yards the old Bulldog punt return mark of 86 yards, made by Jerry Nunnally against Centre in 1941.

The stocky Chicago senior right halfback also scored against Carolina last year on a 74-yard dash with an intercepted pass.

Maricich last year, with eight interceptions, became co-holder with Clyde Ehrhardt, Georgia center in 1942, of the SEC pass interception mark.

Avrea Hurls Tulsa Win Over Vols, 4-1

TULSA, Okla.—(AP)—Jim Avrea pitched Tulsa to a 4-1 win over Nashville last night and the Oilers came within one game of winning the Dixie Series playoffs.

It was the second series victory for the Texas League's Avrea, who threw the Oilers to a 13-2 triumph in the first game in Nashville. The series now stands at three wins for Tulsa, one for the Southern Association's entry.

Tulsa took a three-run first-inning lead and added the other in the second.

The Volunteers got their singleton on Carl Sawatski's fourth-inning homer. It was his second roundtripper in the series.

Ben Wade went the distance for the losers and allowed seven hits, one less than Avrea. Wade struck out two against twice that many by Avrea.

Walker Kress is set to start for Tulsa tomorrow night and Pete Mallory got the nod for Nashville.

There wasn't an error by either team.

GAINESVILLE ANCHORMAN — George Van Giesen, Gainesville High center, anchors a stout Elephant line which faces Griffin Friday night in the feature game of the North Georgia Class A grid schedule. The Elephants hold two victories over nonleague competition, while Griffin has won its only league start. Last year the two teams battled to a scoreless tie.

Gainesville and Griffin Meet in Feature Game

Byy JACK JACKSON

Gainesville's Red Elephants, tempered by two outside victories, jump into the midst of a tough Region 4-A card this weekend when they travel to Griffin to meet Jim Cavan's Gold Wave in the top game of the North Georgia prep card.

It's the only important Class A League game in the upper half of the state, with other contenders either meeting lesser opponents, outside opponents, or being idle completely.

The Elephants have what looks to be one of the best backfields around in Marvin Free, Frank Barrett, Bobby Jones and Reg Murphy, while Griffin counters with one of the best lines in the league, headed by such people as Charlie Hopper, Don Stewart and Dee Sullins. The meeting of the two should produce fireworks.

Gainesville also has to face LaGrange and Decatur this Fall, while Griffin has dates left with Thomaston, Decatur and LaGrance. LaGrange and Decatur are not scheduled to meet each other. From those games should emerge the 4-A champ.

Marietta's Blue Devils, seemingly determined to make a successful defense of their Region 3-A title, meet West Fulton Friday night, while their apparent chief rival, Rockmart, is idle. The Yellow Jackets dropped a two-touchdown decision to Gainesville last week, but remain one of the best in 3-A.

Top Class B game on the upcoming schedule sends Dallas to Newnan Friday. Both are at the top in Region Three. Thomson battles Madison in the feature of the 4-B card.

The Canton-Fulton game, originally scheduled for Friday, will be played Thursday night at College Park's Stadium.

FOR ROUGHNESS

TCU Coach Blasts Arkansas

FORT WORTH, Texas—(AP)—Coach Dutch Meyer of Texas Christian University bitterly condemned yesterday the way the Arkansas University Razorbacks played football. He is going to protest to the Southwest Conference:

"Someone has to do something in an effort to protect the players, so I'm going to do what I can," he said.

Arkansas beat TCU, 27-7, in Saturday's Conference game.

Meyer complained of elbowing by the Arkansas players and illegal use of the hands.

"We've never had any similar experiences in games with other Conference members," Meyer said, "but within the past three years in games with Arkansas we have suffered a broken jaw, a crushed cheekbone and numerous less serious facial injuries from elbow blows," he said.

"Use of the elbows is illegal. I want it be stopped! We could retaliate, but I won't play that kind of football. The officials could stop it if they'd throw a few players out of the games."

Linebacker Orein Browning suffered a fractured cheek bone in Saturday's game.

Meyer said End Morris Bailey, Center Max Eubanks and Quarterback Lindy Berry also came out of the game with cut lips, loose teeth and facial bruises.

Champ Lou Thesz Meets McIntyre Here

Big Lou Thesz, generally recognized as world's heavyweight wrestling champ, will clash with Southern heavyweight champion Don McIntyre in the feature match on Friday's mat program at the City Auditorium.

The match promises to be one of the best of the season. Thesz, who took the title from Wild Bill Longson about two years ago, will come here fro mCanada, where he has completed a successful tour of the big wrestling centers.

The other matches on the program are also slated for one fall to a finish. In the first, Babe Zaharias battles Al Massey, while the semiwindup features Bill (Black Menace) Cazzell against Joe Wolf.

The two 20-minute limit tussles will find Nick Carter clashing with Abe Zvonkin and Al Galento squaring off against Ralph Garabaldi. The first bout starts at 8:30

Barons Sell Two; Elect New President

BIRMINGHAM—(AP)—The Birmingham Barons of the Southern Association yesterday sold two pitchers to the Boston Red Sox and elected a new president.

Pitchers sold were Jim Suchecki (10-11) and Jim (Hot Rod) McDonald (16-9), both righthanders.

Al Dement, Birmingham businessman, was named president of the Barons at a meeting of stockholders. Other officers elected were Rufus Lackey, first vice president; Eddie Glennon, general manager and W. E. Hargrove, secretary.

Baugh Flings Redskins To Win, 27-14

PITTSBURGH—(AP) — That old Washington Redskin reliable, Sammy Baugh, threw three touchdown passes last night to lead his team to a 27-14 victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers before 30,000 fans.

Baugh, 35 years old and now in his thirteenth year as a Redskin, was almost the whole offensive show for Washington.

All three of his touchdown passes found the receivers in the clear and bound for touchdowns.

The first, to Hugh Taylor, picked up 25 yards and six points. The second, to Dan Sandifer, was a 35-yarder. The Steelers were ahead at this point, 14-13, and old Sam cagily saved his best pitch for the last. He got off a beauty to the stringbean Taylor on a play that picked up 58 yards and put the Redskins ahead for keeps.

The other Redskin touchdown came with less than two minutes to go, and for variety, it was done on the ground. Rob Goode was the big gun on this one. The rookie from Texas A&M streaked through the middle for 47 yards to set up the touchdown. And he finished what he started, too, plunging over for the touchdown from the two.

Braves Buy Hartsfield

BOSTON—(AP)—The Boston Braves added three players to their roster over the weekend.

After Sunday's 3-0 victory over the New York Giants the Boston club reported the purchase of Second Baseman Roy Hartsfield from Milwaukee, tribal farm in the American Association.

This announcement followed by a few hours the purchase of Outfielders Sam Jethroe and Bob Addis from the Brooklyn Dodger organization.

Hartsfield, voted the "outstanding freshman of 1949" in the Association, is a 23-year-old athlete from Chattahoochee, Ga., who led his league in runs scored with 120 and hits with 203.

GOLFING ROUNDUP

Sargent, Cooper, E. Lakers Praised

By BERT PRATHER

East Lake Country Club officials, Southeastern PGA President Harold Sargent and Ponte Vedra's Pete Cooper can now take a bow or two for a job well done.

First, the boys at the Lake. They did everything to make the visitors' stay here during the annual SEPGA tournament a pleasant one. In fact, they did such a swell job that it prompted the veteran, Walter Evans, of New Iberia, La., to respond with a little speech as he stepped up to get his check for winning the senior's division of the SEPGA Sunday afternoon. Pop, a former world's amateur wrestling champ and for several years mat coach at University of Illinois, said it was the best run tournament in which he had ever competed.

As for young Sargent, he did his usual efficient job in handling the various details of the tournament. In fact, he was so good that the boys thought enough of him to saddle him with the presidency again.

Sargent

Now to Mr. Cooper. We picked him as the probable winner before the tournament started, and that in itself is enough to cause him to falter somewhere along the line. But not Mr. Pete, he just stayed in there with the most consistent sort of golf for four rounds and came stroking home to a one under par 283 for the 72-hole championship.

Tommy Wright threatened the Ponte Vedra star midway the last round but all Pete did was to tighten up his belt and finish the last nine in two under par. He's a real champion and the other boys in the field seemed proud that he won.

Beat the Big Boys

Cooper is considered one of the best golfers among the teaching professionals. He beat the money derby boys for top dough in the St. Petersburg, Fla., Open this year and competed in seven tournaments this Summer, winning approximately $2,600.

Pete caught a plane for home Sunday night where he will busy himself with the task of getting his home course ready for the Florida Open starting next week. Pete also plans to play in the North-South at Pinehurst, N. C., but after that his club duties will occupy most of his time.

Tommy Barnes

Atlanta's Tommy Barnes finished in a tie for second, six strokes off the lead, but should have done much better. Tommy usually breezes at East Lake where he is thoroughly familar with every inch of the course. In 1946 at Macon, Barnes led the field home in this tournament by five strokes. Being an amateur he wasn't even eligible to get his name on the championship plaque.

Grady 'B' Eleven Clips Marist Reserves

The Grady High B team won its second straight Friday, when the little Gray Knights defeated the Marist B eleven, 13-0, at Piedmont Park.

Halfback Tommy Hansom scored the first touchdown midway the second period when he ran a reverse 15 yards.

Grady scored again late in the third quarter when Fullback Larry Frank intercepted a Marist pass and raced 35 yards to paydirt. Don Reid converted.

Van Buren Sets Loop Record

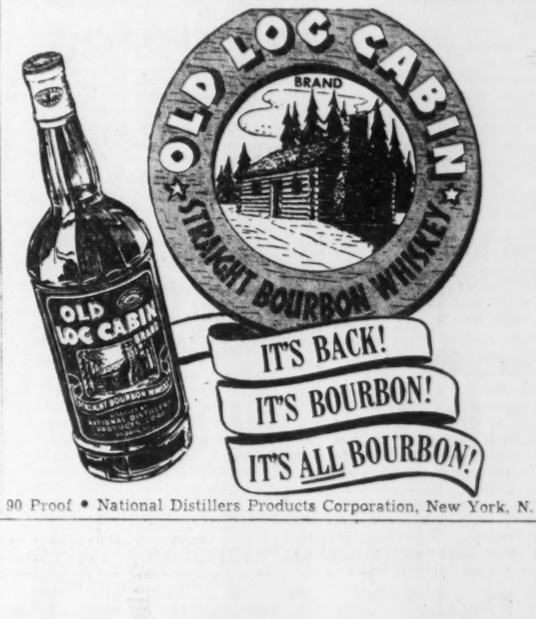

DETROIT — (AP) — Halfback Steve Van Buren, of the Philadelphia Eagles, set a new National Football League lifetime ground-gaining record last night as he smashed over for two fourth-period touchdowns to give the Eagles a 22-14 win over the Detroit Lions.

Van Buren piled up 135 yards in 33 tries to give him a total of 3,951 yards in his NFL career. The former Louisiana State University star, now in his sixth year as a pro, eclipsed the record of 3,860 yards set by Clark Hinkle of the Green Bay Packers in his 10-year pro career.

The Eagles had to call on all of Van Buren's running wiles to erase the 14-5 halftime lead which the stubborn Detroit Club built up in its first home game of the year before 25,012 fans.

Detroit got off to a fast start as it went on a 65-yard scoring drive in the opening period. Fred Enke tossed a 22-yard pass to End Johnny Greene and Bill Dudley kicked the point to put the Lions ahead 7-0.

Your City Hall

City Council yesterday:

1. Took final action to finance a $1,250,000 addition to the City incinerator to double its capacity. Stafford W. Graydon, City Health Engineer, predicted a contract for the project can be awarded some time in November. Plans prepared by Robert & Company have been completed.

2. Extended the one-way stretch for northbound traffic on Pryor Street from its southern terminus at Mitchell Street to Garnett Street; authorized traffic control lights at Auburn Avenue and Butler Street, Boulevard and Park Drive, Durant Place and Ponce de Leon Avenue, Memorial Drive and Stovall Street, Cooper and Glenn Streets and Clifton Street and Memorial Drive, and passed ordinances barring the use of sirens, gongs or flashing lights on vehicles except in emergency, forbidding double riding on motor scooters or motor bikes, and passed another measure requiring professional bondsmen at the Police Station to be fingerprinted.

3. Provided $60,000 for extension of a water main from Springdale Road to the Airport, voted money to employ a gardener to care for the new Plaza Park, set up money so Carl T. Sutherland, City Personnel Director, can employ another assistant, and allocated $15,700 for purchase of an additional three acres of land for the J. Allen Couch Park, in the Bankhead Avenue area.

4. Passed resolutions deploring the death last week of Mrs. C. C. Styron, wife of Atlanta's Fire Chief, and ordered the resolutions spread on the minutes of Council meeting.

5. Passed an ordinance offered by Councilman Cecil Hester, Chairman of the Aviation Committee, permitting Jack Gray to purchase for $100 a house the City had to buy for the expansion of the airport. Gray will move the house and said yesterday he had bought a lot on which to put it.

6. Sent to the Tax Committee a petition by workers in the tax office requesting that skeleton shifts be maintained in the office on Saturday mornings; referred to the Electric Lights Committee a resolution authorizing surveys for extension of Boulevard lighting on Memorial Drive from Whitefoord Avenue to Candler Road; approved installation of 22 1,000 candle power lights on Georgia Avenue from Terry to Washington Streets and sent to the Tax Committee another proposal to establish nine new sub-stations to make it more convenient for Atlantans to pay their monthly water bills.

Circus Coming

The first official evidence of Fall was seen in Atlanta yesterday when Joe Richardson, City Clerk, announced "The Greatest Show on Earth"—Ringling Bros., Barnum & Bailey Circus—is scheduled for Atlanta Nov. 22. Richardson said the circus in Atlanta is an infallible sign of Fall and the date has been cleared. The big top probably will be at Lakewood Park, where it has played for the past two seasons.

Sports Permit Sought

City Atty. Jack C. Savage and his aides will scrutinize existing laws with a view to authorizing more permits to promote wrestling and boxing in Atlanta. The action was taken yesterday by Council's Municipal Buildings and Athletic Committee, which heard petitions seeking the right to promote such contests. At the present time, such permits are limited to the inner fire limits and to the Ponce de Leon ball park.

Save Taxpayers Money

Atlanta taxpayers got a $135.50 per month savings yesterday, but few will notice it. City Council approved a series of reclassifications, job abolitions and shifts recommended by John C. Sattelmayer, new director of the Library. Councilman Ralph Huie, Finance Committee Chairman, greeted the proposals as "something new—saving money."

Off to Ft. Bragg

Brig. Gen. Carl T. Sutherland and Maj. Gen. Edward W. Smith, of Atlanta, left this morning for an airborne demonstration at Ft. Bragg, where they will be guests of Lt. Gen. Alvan C. Gillen, Commander of the Third Army. They will proceed to Washington for conferences of the Army Affairs Committee of the Officers Reserve Corps and with Gen. Joseph L. Collins, Army Chief of Staff.

37 Winners Approved

The winners of the 37 posts in the Sept. 7 City primary and the runover have been certified to City Clerk Joe Richardson for places on the Dec. 7 general City election ballot. Council yesterday approved the list.

Mayor's Merry-Go-Round

Mayor Hartsfield yesterday greeted the National Defense Transportation Association meeting at the Biltmore Hotel, attended a Founder's Day celebration at the Southeastern Fair at which Ivan Allen, Sr., daddy of the Fair, was honored, and later in the afternoon was present during some of the City Council's deliberations.

TeacherPayPlan Voted Down in Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. —(AP)— Mississippi's white and Negro teachers have voted down, 10,108 to 2,670, a plan which advocates said would have equalized their salaries under a State-wide schedule.

Gov. Fielding L. Wright said in announcing the election results that he had not decided what the next move would be. He had planned to call a special session of the Legislature to consider the plan had it been approved by the teachers.

The State's white teachers voted 2,462 for the plan, 5,529 against it. The Negro teachers' vote was 208 for, 4,579 against.

The plan would have bracketed, for pay purposes, the teachers into six sections according to their training. Within each section the actual salary level would have been determined by the teachers' experience and score on a national teachers examination.

The pay scale would have ranged from an average of $2,400 a year for those with master's degrees, to $400 a year for those with less than one year of college.

The present salary scale ranges from $2,306.63 a year for white teachers with a masters degree and $1,309.63 for Negroes with the same training, to $949.11 for whites with three years of high school or less and $433.38 for Negroes in the same classification.

Main opposition to the plan centered about the examination feature.

16th Talmadge Pick on Council

Gov. Talmadge made another change in the Georgia Citizens' Council yesterday as he announced replacement of Ed Davidson, Columbus business executive, with John W. Maloof, of Atlanta.

The appointment of Maloof gives Talmadge a majority of 16 of the Council's 21 members. Davidson was an appointee of a previous administration, as are five remaining members of the Council.

The Columbus man was in charge of the Teen-Age Center program of the Council's activities and served as dean of the Youth Workshops held annually under the Council's sponsorship.

The contest will close Oct. 16.

THESE WOMEN! By d'Alessio

"I hope some policeman stops your wife and gives her a ticket for speeding when she's hurrying home to fix YOUR supper!"

Mirror of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Does feeling "useless" make old folks age faster?

Answer: Yes, writes Raphael Ginzberg in the Individual Psychology Bulletin. Old-age pensions don't make up for leaving older men and women with nothing to do that is of any use to anyone else because feeling useless is a larger factor in the "decay and deterioration of many elderly people" than the passage of time. Making things so "easy" for a well-loved parent that he feels you're making no demands upon him (which means to him that you do not need him any longer) may be signing his death-warrant. No one should stop working altogether till he has to.

Should you ever act as if most people were fools?

Answer: Within limits, yes—when you are driving a car! Actually, of course, if most drivers were not pretty sensible and careful, our roads would be strewn with more wrecks than they are now. But you never can tell which of all the drivers you meet is the one who is emotionally upset, drunk, reckless, or absent-minded so that on the whole, the less intelligence you give the other fellow credit for, the more you yourself will be showing. The fact that you have the "right of way" won't help you if someone else doesn't realize it.

Do misguided teachers block children's development?

Answer: Yes, writes Celia Burns Stendler in Childhood Education. Many children are held back or made neurotic by old-time notions, such as that a child should be scolded the first time that he does anything wrong; that he can do anything if he "tries hard enough;" that he should not be allowed to know you think he's good—or clever; that nothing he gets fun out of doing can be really valuable to him; and that it is good for him to "fail" occasionally. Such attitudes rob him of the feeling of security which his development depends on.

TOMORROW'S PROBLEM:

Partner opens with 1 Diamond, you hold:

♠—Q 6 3 ♥—Q 8 4 ♦—A J 5 2 ♣—A 5 3

What is your response?

A BIT OF BASIC TRAINING IN CARD COMBINATIONS

The study of card combinations and their proper play is very interesting and will repay the student of the game many times for the effort expended in in learning them. A standard play involving a simple knowledge of fundamentals and yet not known by the vast majority of bridge players, came up in today's hand. Against the three no trump contract, West opened the duece of spades, and dummy's 10 was taken by East's ace. The continuation of that suit naturally did not appear attractive since partner probably had no more than one entry.

East properly realized that in order to defeat the contract, club tricks must be developed. He, therefore, returned his fourth best club. Declarer ducked and won in dummy with the nine.

The ace of diamonds was driven out and the king of clubs was still good for a trick. Declarer, therefore, succeeded in taking two spades, three hearts, three diamonds, and two clubs for a total of 10 tricks. East's lead of the low club was a misguided step. The two no trump rebid after partner had made a very mild response marked the declarer with the king of clubs and it should have been no secret that the low club lead would permit him to take two tricks in the suit. The proper return was the queen. This would be won by declarer's king and when West subsequently obtained the lead with the ace of diamonds, a club lead would have trapped dummy's jack.

A simple way to learn the proper play of this particular combination is this: When the dummy is under you (that is, plays before you) and contains an honor which you surround, as in this case the jack is surrounded by the queen and the 10, and you have an honor above that, as in this case the ace, you play as though dummy's honor were in your hand. In other words, you consider that you hold the ace, queen (jack), 10 from which the proper lead would be the queen.

Planting in November Provides Good Stand

TUESDAY, OCT. 4, 1949

Suggestion of the day: Cattle will be judged today at the Fair.

PASTURES COMPARED

Over in Charleston at the Brahman Cattle Centennial last week a professor from North Carolina State College, named Lovvorn, emphasized a fact I want to present here while it is still hot. He showed some pasture scenes giving comparisons between growths of pasture plants which had been planted on different dates.

And it was evident the Fall and Winter plants which were planted in Summer pastures did better when planted in November than they did when planted in September. This simple fact is highly significant.

For example, if one plants crimson clover in sericea in September, the green sericea offers too much competition for the new clover and it sprouts and dies out. But if the clover is planted on the sericea in November, when the sericea is dormant, the competition for moisture and plant food is not so keen and the clover thrives.

So it would be for fescue or ladino. Once the Summer crop is dormant and the Summer weeds are dormant or dead, the fescue or ladino seedlings have a chance to make a good start without too much competition.

Of course, this doesn't make for guaranteed Winter grazing the first year but it does make for a good stand, and this is important.

Describing the history of the New Deal years tended toward replacing a constitutional government of laws by a political government of men, the speaker declared only the South's traditional resistance could overcome a trend toward collectivism.
